In the final preparation of Part VI. for the press the aid of friends was required, as was explained in the accompanying Introductory Notice. Part VII. has been compiled and edited by the Rev. F. J. A. HORT, D.D., Hulsean Professor of Divinity, and the Rev. A. W. STREANE, M.A., Fellow of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

PREFATORY NOTICE.

MRS. TREGELLES considers that an apology and explanation are due to the possessors of the late DR. TREGELLES's Greek New Testament, on account of the long delay of the Prolegomena. In the autumn of 1872 he dictated to her some of his wishes on the subject: but because of his great weakness she had to choose opportunities, and to write the notes so hastily that no other person could decypher them; and she became too much occupied in ministering to him to admit of her giving attention to anything of the kind during his lifetime. She much regrets the inconvenience that has been experienced through this delay, and thanks the Subscribers for the patient consideration which they have manifested under the peculiar and affecting circumstances.

The following paragraphs were intended to stand at the head of the Prolegomena:—

“Through God's help my Greek Testament has been brought to a conclusion; the last Part of it not altogether by my own hands, as I had hoped; but where mine have failed, I have gratefully to acknowledge that those of others have been graciously and efficiently provided. If my health had permitted, I hoped to have supplied a general revision of my text, specially that of the Gospels, some valuable materials having become available since I commenced my work; but I regret my inability to carry out my intention.

“I can add but very little to what has already appeared as Introductory Notices to the different Parts, and I will reproduce as much of these notices as may seem needful or desirable. I must refer the reader who wishes for more details as to the principles which I hold, and the studies in which I have been engaged, to my ‘Account of the Printed Text of the Greek New Testament, with remarks on its Revision upon Critical Principles’ (Bagster & Sons, 1854), still in print, and to the description of MSS., versions, &c., given in my ‘Introduction to the Textual Criticism of the New Testament,’ published by Longmans, 1856, with a postscript of ‘Additions,’ 1860, as part of the fourth volume of the ‘Introduction to the Critical Study and Knowledge of the Holy Scriptures’ of the Rev. T. H. HORNE, B.D.”

It has appeared to some of Dr. TREGELLES's friends undesirable that his edition of the New Testament should be published in its complete and permanent form without containing some fuller and more explicit statement of his views and principles of criticism than the Introductory Notice to the First Part supplies. No words but those of Dr. TREGELLES himself could of course be employed: but it seemed possible to provide an authentic and tolerably sufficient exposition by bringing together consecutively some of the leading passages in the two works mentioned above; and accordingly the attempt has been made. For illustrations and for discussions of minor and collateral topics the reader will naturally have recourse, if need be, to these works themselves, which likewise contain much matter respecting other editions, and the special merits of earlier and contemporary critics. The extracts here subjoined, which have been selected, arranged, and furnished with headings by Dr. HORT, suffer unavoidably by detachment from their context, and by the want of intervening links: but it is believed that they will convey a true impression of Dr. TREGELLES's views on the principal questions of textual criticism.

On the other hand, it has been found impossible to rearrange successfully into a single compact whole the Lists of Authorities prefixed to the several Parts. Such a re-arrangement, had it proceeded from the hand of Dr. TREGELLES himself, and been enriched with the results of his maturest judgment on each authority, would have had a distinctive value. But no adequate and appropriate description of the authorities in his own words could now be obtained by compilation; and the six partial lists in their present form are sufficiently adapted to the requirements of those who need only a short index of reference. A few corrections and necessary additions are supplied by Dr. HORT among the Addenda and Corrigenda.

The work would be incomplete without some account of the preparatory labours on which to a certain extent it rests. Portions of the statement published by Dr. TREGELLES in his treatise of 1854 have been therefore reprinted at the end. A brief notice of his chief subsequent labours of the same kind has been inserted in brackets at the proper place.

At the close of the Prolegomena Dr. TREGELLES desired to repeat once more the expression of his great sense of a debt of gratitude to Mr. WILLIAM CHALK, which he had recorded in the Introductory Notice to Part II., the twenty years there spoken of having meanwhile become thirty.

"There are others," he proposed to say, "who have afforded me important help, to whom also thanks are due from me, and from all who in any way may profit by my labours."

He would certainly have wished to add some such closing words as these which follow, taken from the Introductory Notices to the First and Third Parts.

"This work was undertaken in the full belief that it would be for the service of God, by serving His Church. To Him would I reverently render my thanksgivings for removing hindrances; and to His grace and blessing do I commend what has been done, in the name of His Son Jesus Christ, our Lord and only Saviour." "May He who, by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, gave forth that Scripture which is able to make wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus, bless this endeavour to exhibit the text of the New Testament in the very words in which it has been transmitted on the evidence of ancient authority."

First Working Out of Principles.

“IN 1844 Tregelles published an edition of the book of Revelation in Greek and English; the Greek text so revised as to rest almost entirely upon ancient evidence, and the English adapted to the Greek so revised. This was prepared in order to put the English reader in possession of some of the results of criticism in connection with that portion of the New Testament which in the common text rests upon the smallest measure of evidence, and which if published on MS. authorities would differ far more from the basis of our English authorised version than all the Epistles of St. Paul taken together. In the introduction to this edition of the Apocalypse, Tregelles gave some account of his previous critical studies, and of the principles which he was, in an independent course of examination, led to adopt.” . . . “In examining collations of MSS. and the various readings accompanying printed editions, he saw that ancient copies present very frequently, in characteristic passages, a decisive testimony against the common text and those MSS. which present a general agreement with it; and thus he was induced to inquire into the actual evidence for particular readings; and finding this often to be wholly unsatisfactory, he went on to examine how far a text could be formed in which the ancient MSS. should be the authorities for every word, the versions being used as collateral witnesses when the insertion or omission of clauses, &c., were under consideration. Such a text would be, he considered, at least worthy of more confidence than that which rests on indefinite grounds; and, even if defective, it would be at least ancient, and would take us far nearer to the times of the sacred writers themselves.” . . . “Two statements of Griesbach served as important suggestions,—that no reading should be adopted (however good it might seem) unless it has at least some ancient evidence; and, that we ought soon rather to think of limiting our critical authorities than of increasing them numerically ad infinitum. Thus, if a selection must be made, and if in all cases ancient testimony be indispensable, let the primary ground of selection be that of taking the copies known to be ancient; (the field could be enlarged afterwards if needful). Also, it was seen that critical editors do give a kind of pre-eminence to the most ancient MSS. This seemed a kind of tacit consent in favour of the principle proposed for adoption; and the mode in which Scholz does commonly set the more recent testimony against the most ancient, as if to overpower it, did in itself suggest a contrary course, and led ultimately to a more close examination of ancient authorities and to a fuller apprehension of the value of the evidence of ancient MSS., versions, and fathers when united, and at length to the establishment of the authority of ancient documents by comparative criticism; that is, by showing, in places which admit of investigation, that readings known to be ancient are now found only in some of the most ancient authorities (or in those which agree with them in text); so that the arrangement of authorities, 1st, according to antiquity, and 2nd, by their accordance with such copies on the one hand, and all the more recent documents standing on the other, will be found to coincide with the distribution which would be equally requisite if the examination were conducted conversely, by inquiring, in what MSS. or what class of MSS. are those readings now found which we know on independent grounds to have been once widely diffused or perhaps general? There was thus a point reached strongly resembling that of Lachmann: the path, however, leading to the conclusions had been wholly different, and the groundwork of ancient authority was doubly defended, by the age of the documents themselves, and also by the proved age of the readings contained in them and in those like them.”*

General Statement of Principles.

“The object of all Textual Criticism is to present an ancient work, as far as possible, in the very words and form in which it proceeded from the writer’s own hand. Thus, when applied to the Greek New Testament, the result proposed is to give a text of those writings, as nearly as can be done on existing evidence, such as they were when originally written in the first century.

“While the object of the textual criticism of the New Testament is admitted to be the same, there are two very different routes by which different editors may seek to arrive at the proposed result; they are, however, so different, that the conclusions cannot be identical: the one is, to regard the mass of documents numerically, and to take them, on the ground of their wide diffusion, as the general witnesses to the text which should be adopted; the other is, to use those documents which are in themselves ancient, or which, as a demonstrated fact, contain ancient readings; and thus to give a text which was current at least in the fourth century of our era. On the one side, there are the mass of MSS. written from the eighth century to the sixteenth; on the other side, there are a few MSS. of great antiquity, together with a few of later date; and these are supported by the ancient versions in general, and by the citations of ecclesiastical writers.” . . .

“Now I believe that two things are of the utmost importance at present in the criticism of the text of the New Testament: (i.) To draw a line of demarcation as to what critical aids shall be admitted as good and useful witnesses; and (ii.) To determine as a fixed and settled principle that the only proof that a reading is ancient, is, that it is found in some ancient document.

“Both these ideas were enunciated by Griesbach: he said, ‘Perhaps we shall soon have to think of lessening our critical aids, rather than of increasing them without limit . . . . Those, indeed, who carry on criticism as though it were a mechanical art, are delighted with so numerous an array of MSS.’ (Symb. Crit. i. Præf. 2.) On the other point he said. ‘There is no need to repeat, again and again, that readings, which, looked at in themselves, we should judge to be the better, are not to be preferred, unless authenticated by at least some ancient testimonies.' (Gr. Test. i. Proleg. p. lxi.)

"The selection of authorities must not be a mere arbitrary procedure; but it must be the adoption, as a basis, of such as are proved to be witnesses worthy of confidence. Ancient MSS., the older versions, and such early citations as have come down to us in a trustworthy form, are the vouchers, and the only certain ones, that any reading is ancient. And again, Comparative Criticism proves, that in selecting these authorities we do not act empirically or rashly, but that we rely on the evidence of witnesses whose character admits of being tested. And besides those MSS. which are actually the oldest, we may use as valuable auxiliaries those whose general text accords with them, and that on two grounds; 1st, Because the character of such MSS. is shown from their general agreement with the oldest; and 2nd, Because it is also proved by the same criteria of accordance with the best early versions and citations." . . . . "If the oldest MSS. had not existed, and we were left, as we are with respect to so many classical authors, to MSS. later than the tenth century, true critical principles might still have guided us aright in many respects. But we may be thankful that God has in His Providence ordered otherwise than that we should be so left; and thus we have the satisfaction of using the oldest MSS. as witnesses of the ancient text. Their age would cause them to have a primary claim on our attention; their proved character equally shows that this claim is well founded." . . . .

"It has been repeatedly urged that the few most ancient MSS. bear but a minute proportion to the mass of those which perished in the early centuries; and thus the lost copies may have contained a very different text. To appeal from what we have to what we never can have, from what we know to what we never can know, would transfer us at once from the domain of facts and proofs into that of mere conjectures and suppositions. The words of Cicero might be taken as a sufficient answer to such surmisings: 'Est ridiculum, ad ea quæ habemus nihil dicere; QUERERE QUÆ HABERE NON POSSUMUS.' (Cic. pro Arch. iv.).

"What if any one were to say, in defence of any doctrine or practice, that it is true that it is not taught, or that it may even seem to be discountenanced, in the twenty-seven books of the New Testament which we have, but why may it not have been inculcated in other writings of the Apostles, or their companions, which we have not? In the realms of pure imagination one question as to possibilities is just as good as another.

"Does it not strike those who bring forward this trite objection (until, on their own confession, they are weary of repeating it), as at least singular, that ALL the oldest documents belong to the kind which they decry, because of their being in the numerical minority? That each newly-found palimpsest should exhibit its relation to the oldest copies previously known? That a version coming newly to light (such as the Curetonian Syriac) should still so perversely differ from the array of recent MSS.? But, indeed, if in the early centuries MSS. did exist which accorded with the later mass of copies, such documents would present a strange and unaccountable contradiction to the other monuments with which we might compare them. Comparative Criticism would be able to prove that their text was at least suspicious."*

* Account of the Printed Text of the Greek New Testament, pp. 174—178.

Comparative Criticism.

"By Comparative Criticism* I mean such an investigation as shows what the character of a document is,—not simply from its age, whether known or supposed,—but from its actual readings being shown to be in accordance or not with certain other documents. By an estimate of MSS. through the application of comparative criticism, is intended merely such an arrangement as may enable it to be said, that certain MSS. do, as a demonstrated fact, present features of classification as agreeing or not agreeing in text with ancient authorities with which they are compared.

"The MSS. must first be stated according to age, and to known affinities amongst themselves in certain particulars."

"The process of investigation now is to take such passages as afford good and unequivocal evidence; to inquire what are the readings which in such places are supported by known ANCIENT testimony; and then to see what MSS. support such early evidence: and thus it may be learned whether the most ancient MSS. (and those which accord with them in reading) do or do not present fair samples of the ancient text.

"The passages brought forward first will be some on which the advocates of the mass of the recent copies have relied; as though the ancient MSS., which some critics have considered to be of the most value, could not be followed rightly in the readings which they present. The points of inquiry will be in such places, 1, What readings are attested as ancient, apart from the MS. authorities? and, 2, What MSS. support the readings so far authenticated? The reader is requested in each place to observe particularly what reading is proved to be ancient by the joint evidence of different versions, and (in cases where the place has been cited) by early quotations."†

[A list of 72 illustrative passages follows, three of which are discussed at length.]

"Here, then, is a sample of the very many passages, in which, by the testimony of ancient versions, or fathers, that such a reading was current in very early times, the fact is proved indubitably; so that even if no existing MS. supported such readings, they would possess a strong claim on our attention: and such facts, resting on combined evidence, might have made us doubt, whether the old translators and early writers were not in possession of better copies than the modern ones which have been transmitted to us. Such facts so proved might lead to the inquiry, whether there are not some MSS. which accord with these ancient readings; and when examination shows that such copies actually exist (although they are the few in contrast to the many), it may be regarded as a demonstrated point that such MSS. deserve peculiar attention.

* The term Comparative Criticism is applied by Dr. Tregelles ("Printed Text," p. 59) to the process by which Bentley hoped to restore the text of the New Testament by means of "the agreement between the oldest Latin and Greek MSS." "The introduction of such a term as this," he says, "scarcely demands an apology. Few secular writers of antiquity admit of comparative criticism of the text, for they have in general come down to us in MSS. of one language only. Not so the New Testament; for there a new element of textual criticism must be considered; and it is our ability to use comparative criticism that enables us to form a more correct judgment of the absolute and relative value of different MSS. and versions."

† "Printed Text," pp. 132, 133.

"I have cited more than seventy passages of this kind; and their number may, I believe, be increased easily twenty-fold:—they all prove the same point,—that in places in which the more valuable ancient versions (or some of them) agree in a particular reading, or in which such a reading has distinct patristic testimony, and the mass of MSS. stand in opposition to such a lection, there are certain copies which habitually uphold the older reading.

"The passages have been taken on no principle of selection except that of giving such as bring out this point clearly. Those from St. Matthew are places in which defenders of the mass of copies had themselves drawn attention to the ancient readings, as though they could not be followed. For the sake of brevity most of the passages have been given without remark, and without any attempt to state the balance of evidence; for it was sufficient for the purpose to prove that the best versions do uphold certain readings (often in accordance with fathers), and that they are in this confirmed by certain MSS.

"Even when much might be said against a reading so attested, it must, on principles of evidence, be regarded as highly probable, even if not certainly genuine.

"The result, then, of this Comparative Criticism stands thus:—

"Readings, whose antiquity is proved apart from MSS., are found in repeated instances in a few of the extant copies.

"These few MSS., the text of which is thus proved to be ancient, include some (and often several) of the oldest MSS. extant.

"In some cases, the attested ancient reading is found in but one or two MSS., but those of the most ancient class.

"And, as certain MSS. are found, by a process of inductive proof, to contain an ancient text, their character as witnesses must be considered to be so established, that in other places their testimony deserves peculiar weight.

"It is in vain for it to be objected that the readings of the versions, on which so much stress has been laid, are purely accidents of transcription or translation, and that the accordance of certain MSS. with them is equally the result of fortuitous circumstances, or of arbitrary alteration. This might be plausible in the case of some one version; but when there are two versions which combine in a definite reading, this plausibility is almost excluded; and so when the according versions are three, or four, or even five, six, or seven, the balance of probabilities increases in such a ratio, as to amount to a moral evidence of a fact of the most convincing kind.

"Of course, it is fully admitted that versions may have suffered in the course of transmission, and that some have suffered materially: but when the ancient versions accord, it is a pretty plain proof that in such passages they have not suffered; and this is (if possible) still more clearly evinced, when we find that the oldest copies of a version (such as the Codex Amiatinus of the Vulgate) present in important passages a far more accordant text than is found in the modern MSS. or printed editions of such a version.

"So too, as to patristic citations:—copyists have often modernised them to suit the Greek text to which they were accustomed; they thus require examination (as Bentley showed); but when the reading is such that it could not be altered without changing the whole texture of their remarks, or when they are so express in their testimony that such a reading is that found in such a place, we need not doubt that it was so in their copies. And so, too, if we find that the reading of early fathers agrees with other early testimonies in opposition to those which are later.

"Comparative Criticism admits of a threefold application—to MSS.—versions—and fathers. The same process which I have used with respect to MSS., will, when applied to versions, show how different is the general character of the Old Latin, the Vulgate, the Curetonian Syriac, and others, from that of the Harelean Syriac, or the re-wrought Latin of the Codex Brixianus;—to say nothing of those versions which are scarcely worth mentioning in such an estimate, such as the Arabic and the Slavonic. And so, too, the general character of the citations of Origen and others is sufficiently shown; and thus we obtain a three-fold cord of credible testimony; not, be it remembered, that of witnesses arbitrarily assumed to be trustworthy, because of real or supposed antiquity, but of those valued because their internal character has been vindicated on grounds of simple induction of facts.

"But it is with MSS. that I have now specially to do; let then the primary classification [by age] be compared with the estimate formed by Comparative Criticism; and thus it will be clear, that the same MSS. to which, as a class, the first place was given on the ground of age, are those which deserve the same rank because of their internal character; for in them as a class, or in some of them, the readings are found, the antiquity of which has been independently proved.

"Thus it is neither prejudice nor dogmatism to assign the highest place in the rank of witnesses to the most ancient MSS., followed by those which in text exhibit a general agreement with them: and thus in places of doubt and difficulty the balance of probabilities will lead to the adoption of the readings of such MSS. as being the best supported. The limits of variation, also, will be so far circumscribed, that we may dismiss from consideration the various readings only found in modern Greek copies, however numerous they may be.

"Occasionally it has been shown that the ancient reading is only found in one or two of the MSS.; this is a proof what an especial attention is due to their united testimony. Thus the joint evidence of the Vatican MS. (B) and the Codex Bezae (D of the Gospels and Acts) has often a peculiar weight, from their alone (or nearly so) supporting the readings proved to be ancient.

"We need not, therefore, consider a regard for the Vatican MS. to be 'a blind adherence to antiquity,' though it is our oldest copy; nor is it 'unaccountable' that the Codex Bezae should be valued in spite of strange interpolations. The Vatican MS. is valued because Comparative Criticism proves it to be good as well as old; the readings of the Codex Bezae receive much attention, because the same mode of investigation shows, that, in spite of all peculiarities in the MS., they possess an ascertained worth. And thus, as to other MSS., Comparative Criticism proves their value, and shows how they may be confidently used as witnesses."*

Use and Abuse of the Later Authorities.

"It has often been said that the uniform text of the later MSS. is an evidence in its favour, and that thus the variations of the oldest, not only from the more recent, but also from one another, show that we cannot rely on them as authorities. If this had been a fact, it might have been sufficiently met by another which is more striking; for it has never been even alleged that the later Greek MSS. are so uniform in their text as are the later Latin; and yet the recent MSS. of the Vulgate agree in perhaps two thousand readings, differing from what Jerome could have given, and also from the few very ancient copies which have been transmitted. And thus the Latin MSS. supply us with an argument from analogy; the mass of the recent copies contain a text notoriously and demonstrably incorrect; the few oldest MSS. supply the means of emendation; and these few must be followed if we think of giving the genuine text of Jerome's version. It is quite true that the mass of the Greek copies do agree in readings which differ from the ancient; and then the advocates of numerical majority point triumphantly to the proportion in favour of the modern reading as being ninety or a hundred to one. Transfer the ground of discussion to the Latin, and then the odds may be increased tenfold; for in cases of the most absolutely certain corruption of recent ages, the proportion of MSS. in their favour will be perhaps nine hundred or a thousand to one. So futile is an argument drawn from numerical preponderance. And the text of Latin MSS. has been found to be almost a criterion of their age; the century to which they belong has been shown to present a singular relation to their actual text.

"But although the later MSS. often show a general agreement in favour of some reading opposed to the most ancient, it is not strictly true that these more modern copies contain an uniform text: Mr. Scrivener's recent collation of MSS. of the Gospels has proved this, and has swept away at once and for ever the argument drawn from the supposed unity of text. The recent copies have their own kind of variations, so have the ancient; the real question is, 'Within the limits of which class are we to seek for the genuine and original text?'

"In speaking of the modern copies as opposed to the ancient, I mean the cursive documents in general as opposed to the MSS. anterior to the seventh century. The copies from the seventh century to the tenth, that is, the later uncials, accord in text, in part with one, in part with the other, of these classes. And besides this general division there are cursive MSS., as I have again and again said, which accord with the ancient text; and there are also cursive MSS. which, though generally agreeing in text with the mass, contain lections, here and there, such as are found in the ancient copies. These facts do not in the least interfere with the general phenomena of transcriptural mutation, nor with its general course in one direction. They only show that there were exceptions, but just such exceptions as prove the rule. It cannot be doubted that, in the Latin New Testament, the text current before the time of Jerome gradually gave place to his version or revision; and yet the Colbert MS., containing one of the purest ante-hieronymian texts of the Gospels (edited by Sabatier), was written in the twelfth century. Just so Greek MSS. of the ancient class of text were occasionally written in later ages; although the general course was the same; and the new variations introduced demonstrate that there was no established, uniform, Constantinopolitan text.

"It is granted freely that the oldest copies differ amongst themselves,—that none of them is perfect; but these considerations do not take away their value as critical authorities; they are certainly monuments of what was read and used in the time when they were written; and from their contents, in connection with other ancient evidence, it is for criticism, in a Christian spirit and with proper intelligence, to seek the materials for reconstructing that fabric of revealed truth which has been in some measure disfigured by the modern copyists and their followers, the early printers.

"But if any choose to advocate the mass of the modern copies as authorities, the difficulty is great; not only because of their internal variations, but also from the fact that such an advocate will find that his witnesses stand opposed to every one of the most ancient copies, also to the ancient versions as a class, and not only to these, but to every Christian writer of the first three centuries of whom we have any considerable remains.

"In saying these things, I do not undervalue the MSS. in general: as monuments of the history of the text they are very important; and not unfrequently some which are not amongst the most ancient are of great value as collateral witnesses; but I do protest against the whole notion of numerical criticism as opposed to ancient authority, be that notion defended by whom it may, or in whatever mode."*

Inadmissibility of Conjecture.

"Critical conjecture as applied to classical works in general is not only permissible, but necessary; for such works have commonly been transmitted by means of very few, and in some cases through but one MS. Thus, mistakes have been evident on the face of the text itself, and good critics have rightly exercised their skill, not in improving conjecturally what required no emendation, but in suggesting, in cases of proved corruption, what might be substituted as giving the real sense of the writer. And when this has been well done, it has been in general by adhering pretty closely to the letters of the MS. and then showing where and how the transcriber must have erred from the common and well known causes of mistake. It is thus something like correcting the errata on a printed page which are manifest as such. Not every one ought to attempt it; but he who possesses competent ability will seek to do it in such a way as to recover what the author must have written: his object is not to improve on the original, but to restore it. In cases of considerable corruption this may be impossible; and then, as well as in all places in which the text does not suggest the correction, it should stand as it is; for, if no attempt at emendation be introduced, the needed correction may be suggested to future critics, to whom this will be rendered impossible if the somewhat injured words and sentences are covered over with attempted plaisters and bandages.

"But as to Scripture the case in general, and as to the New Testament entirely, is of a very different kind. For we possess of the Greek New Testament so many MSS., and we are aided by so many versions, that we are never left to the need of conjecture as the means of removing errata. And those who have sought the most to introduce this species of correction have rarely confined themselves to what might be termed extreme passages, but they have too often sought merely to improve the text in accordance with their own views and feelings; that is therefore setting themselves as judges of what Holy Scripture ought or ought not to contain. As long, indeed, as but few copies had been examined, and it was known that they contained variations, it was only natural that commentators should suggest such corrections, on conjectural grounds, as they thought might be found in MSS.;

but when more extensive collations had been made, and it was clear that the channels of transmission were sufficient to supply evidence as to the text, there was no one thing as to which critical editors were more fully unanimous than in the rejection of all conjecture in the formation of a text.

“Wherever in an ancient writing such corrections are supposed to be needful, the first thing is to demonstrate this as required from the necessity of the case; and if that is admitted to be clear, then the endeavour should be made to show from the text as transmitted what elements are afforded for correction. And thus, even in the Old Testament, there are points, such as dates and numbers, and sometimes names, in which error or omission may be demonstrated from either the context or some other passage; in such cases we are compelled in explanation of the text to admit the corruption, and to state the correction which is required. But in the New Testament we are in very different circumstances, for we are able to have recourse to documents which carry us so much nearer to the time of the writers, that there was not the same opportunity for injuries of the same kind to have been received which we do find in the Old Testament. And as in no work is recourse to be had to conjecture if an explanation can be given of what has been transmitted, it is excluded in the New Testament in the very class of passages into which some would have brought it; and to admit it would be as uncritical as if we were to select the easier readings rather than the more difficult in cases of variations.

“As a mere question of probabilities, it is very unlikely that the genuine reading of the authors has been lost from every one of the ancient copies; and when reverence for Scripture is taken into account, it may show us the wisdom of abstaining from the introduction of anything which does not rest on evidence.”*

Concurrence of ancient authorities in apparently wrong readings.

“It may be fully admitted, that ancient authorities may agree in upholding a reading which cannot be the true one. In every passage, however, where this is supposed, the whole case must be examined, so as to see whether there is really something incongruous in the ancient reading, or whether the objection springs from subjective feeling, and from that alone. If there is a certain error, let us next inquire if any means of correction are supplied, and if evidence does not furnish us with such, then we must avoid having recourse to the modern conjecture which recent traditional copies might supply. Better by far is it to preserve an ancient work of art which bears the marks of the injuries of time, than to submit it to the clumsy hands of some mere workman who would wish to mend it. If somewhat defaced, it might still bear testimony to the genius of the artist whose mind conceived it, and whose hand wrought it;—but, if unskilfully repaired, the original design must of necessity be yet more defaced and obscured; so that a true judgment could scarcely be formed of its original excellence.

“But at all times let the objections to an ancient reading be weighed, and let it be seen whether they have not simply sprung from some traditional notion as to what the meaning of a passage ought to be.”†

Discrimination between differing ancient readings; for example by consideration of (1) express early Statements, (2) relative Authority and Number, (3) tendency to Amplification, (4) tendency to Harmonise Similar Passages, (5) relative Difficulty, (6) Ascetic spirit.

"In confining the examination to the ancient documents, all care must be taken rightly to understand their testimony, and to weigh it in all its particulars.

"Authorities cannot be followed mechanically; and thus, where there is difference of reading amongst the more trustworthy witnesses, all that we know of the nature and origin of various readings, and of the kind of errors to which copyists were liable, must be employed. But, let it be observed, that discrimination of this kind is only required when the witnesses differ; for otherwise, we should fall into the error of determining by conjecture what the text ought to be, instead of accepting it as it is.

"And while all pains and the exercise of a cool judgment should be employed in estimating the value of evidence, let it never be forgotten, that just as it is the place of a Christian to look to God in prayer for his guidance and blessing in all his undertakings, so may he especially do this as to labours connected with the text of Scripture. The object sought in such prayer is not that the critic may be rendered infallible, or that he may discriminate genuine readings by miracle, but that he may be guided rightly and wisely to act on the evidence which the providence of God has preserved, and that he may ever bear in mind what Scripture is, even the testimony of the Holy Ghost to the grace of God in the gift of Christ, and that thus he may be kept from rashness and temerity in giving forth its text. As God in his providence has preserved Holy Scripture to us, so can He vouchsafe the needed wisdom to judge of its text simply on grounds of evidence.

"For my own part, I have that reverence for Holy Scripture, that so far from feeling timidity as to not receiving as divine, words or phrases which do not rest on competent authority, my fear would always be, lest, on any traditional ground, such readings should be received as are not supported by evidence."

"Where there is the united evidence of the oldest MSS., versions, and citations, criticism has no place, for the reading is not in question.

"In passages where testimonies differ, an express statement that the reading was so and so, is of very great value."

"When once the position has been definitively taken, that the ancient evidence is that which we must specially regard, other considerations affecting various readings must have their place, in order to judge between the ancient authorities, when they differ among themselves.

"If the difference is found in so few MSS. as to bear but a small proportion both as to authority and number, and if it is not supported by witnesses of the other classes (versions and citations), then it may be looked on as an accidental variation, and one which does not materially disturb the united evidence of the other witnesses.

"But, where there is real conflict of evidence,—a real and decided variation amongst the older documents, then, in forming a judgment, the common causes of various readings, and the kind of errors to which copyists were liable, must be considered; and thus a decided judgment may often be formed.

"As copyists were always more addicted to amplification than the contrary, as a general rule it must be said, that less evidence is sufficient (other things being equal) in favour of an omission than of an insertion; especially if the insertion is one which might naturally be suggested."

"One of the most habitual kinds of amplification arose from inserting in one Gospel that which belongs to the parallel place in another; by this means, a sort of harmonising verbal agreement was produced: this was long ago noticed by Jerome; and probably, just as often, similar sentences in the same Gospel were brought into exact verbal identity. Another mode of amplification was that of adding to a citation from the Old Testament; a copyist, perhaps, in these cases, having noted in the margin how a passage was read in the other Gospels, or what the connection was of the Old Testament citation; and this marginal annotation would then become a sort of authority to the next copyist to insert the whole in the text. It is thus that in all ancient works, marginal scholia have been intruded into the text: happily, with regard to the New Testament, we can, by means of our existing monuments, go back to a period far earlier than classical MSS. lead us, and the various channels of transmission of the sacred text are so many different checks on the ordinary classes of transcripural error."

"In cases of conflict of ancient evidence, Bengel's rule—

is of wide application: there are difficult readings which deserve the name, from the terms and expressions used, and also those which present some kind of involved construction, such as a copyist would be likely to modify or alter; to the same head may be referred readings which exhibit some grammatical peculiarity, which, although retained by the ancient Alexandrian copyists, would offend every Byzantine Aristarchus, and all the successors of that class of critics—men often of real and extensive learning, but who look at every object from one point of view—that of present intelligibility.

"In judging of conflicting evidence, it has often been laid down that we should adhere to that reading from which the others would be likely to spring: the rule is good, but the application is often very difficult; still, however, it should be borne in mind, and used when it really can."

"At times, readings have been introduced from the ascetic spirit which prevailed at the period when the MSS. were written."

"It would be, however, an entire mistake to suppose that there was any evidence of doctrinal corruption of the sacred records having taken place, unless in an occasional manner, as in the above instances; but, in those and in all similar cases, the wide diffusion of MSS. and versions were safeguards against the reception of such readings; and our ancient authorities, as a class, take us back to a time anterior to the introduction of any such changes."*

Limitation as to the use of Internal Considerations.

"Although various considerations have great and at times decisive weight when evidence is thoroughly conflicting, it would be a great mistake if we were to suppose that we could always discuss and determine readings on such grounds. We may indeed speculate as to what may have been the origin of any particular reading ; but we should go very far astray if we allowed this pragmatism to over-balance or even seriously to interfere with actual evidence : we know by experience to what kinds of errors copyists were obnoxious, but evidence may often show that readings are well supported, the origin of which might have been attributed to one of the causes of occasional mistake.

"There is one benefit which will always result from the examination of the various readings of any passage which is under consideration : even if it does not remove all feeling of doubt, it will at least show within what limits (often very narrow) all uncertainty is confined."*

Versions and early Citations Supplementary to Greek MSS.

"The sources of Textual Criticism are the evidences which we possess for or against different readings ; they are the channels through which, in whole or in part, the text has been transmitted to us. They are three :—

"1. MSS., 2. versions, 3. early citations.

" . . . . As to ancient works in general we have only the first ; for such citations as may be found of classical writers are hardly enough to entitle us to bring them forward as a substantive class of witnesses : while, as to others, we have only the second, since some ancient works are wholly lost in the originals, and we possess them merely in a translation : and thus it is that, with regard to the New Testament, we are far more richly supplied with materials for criticism of different classes.

"If versions alone have been preserved, it is in vain to think of restoring the original text ; all we can do is to be content with the general substance : and with regard to citations, unless they are express, we cannot feel absolute confidence in their giving the exact words ; and thus by themselves they would often be doubtful witnesses. Thus MSS. deserve the first place amongst the sources of criticism, even though those which exist are not as old as the date of particular versions ; and MSS. as occupying the first rank must be first considered."†

Specialities in the testimony of Versions.

"The value of the testimony of versions to the genuine ancient text is considerable ; for although they have been subjected to the same casualties of transcription as has the text of the original Greek, and though at times they have been remodelled in some sort of conformity to the Greek copies then current, yet in general they are representatives of the Greek text from which they were formed. The casualties of transmission would rarely, if ever, affect documents in different languages in a way precisely similar, and we may in this manner account for not a few divergences in the versions as they have come down to us ; yet when we find an avowedly ancient translation according in peculiar readings with some of the more ancient and valuable of the ancient MSS., it is an important proof of the antiquity at least of such readings ; and thus if they are not genuine, the proof must be sought in the counter evidence that may be adduced.

"Some, indeed, have decried the use of versions as though they could not be trusted in particulars of direct evidence, and in support of this they have pointed to errors which they contain, and to proofs of the incompetency of translators. And yet admit all that can fairly be said on this head, and what remains? Surely this, that indefiniteness of rendering occasionally found, and owned mistakes in particular passages, do not invalidate the general character of such a translation, nor yet the certainty of its general testimony."

* Horne, p. 355.

† Horne, pp. 147, 148.

"When a translator mistakes similar words, his version shows what the error was that he made, and thus it is a witness to the text in spite of the mistake. Modern versions frequently introduce Italic supplements: the ancients had no such device, and therefore additions of this kind, or paraphrastic circumlocutions, found in the old versions, must not be regarded as wider departures from the original than our Italic supplements.

"But if modern translations are sufficiently literal to be such close witnesses to the text from which they were formed, this is far more the case with the ancient versions in general: they follow the Greek from which they were taken with an almost scrupulous exactitude, and they so often preserve even the order of the words that they can be quoted as authorities on such points. At times, of course, the translator may have failed in vigilance, he may have passed by words which are omitted in no Greek copy, and he may have confused the text from which he was rendering, just in the same manner as was done by Greek copyists. But the admission of all this in the fullest manner does not afford any ground for the statement that the testimony of versions is of little moment in a question of the insertion or omission of a whole clause, or that 'a version need be very literal' if it is to show whether important words were or were not recognised by the Greek text from which it was taken.

"Allusion has been already made to the condition in which different versions have been transmitted to us: this may show the kind of caution that is needed in employing them critically. A copyist of a version, if he possessed any acquaintance with the original, was in danger of correcting by the Greek text with which he was familiar; and thus he might introduce mixed readings: this is an addition to the usual causes of transcriptural mistake; and for all these allowance must be made. We are, however, often able to revert to very ancient copies of versions, and then, just as is the case with such MSS. of the originals, we are brought back to the condition of the text nearly or quite identical with that in which the translation first appeared."*

"Those who have but little personal acquaintance with the subject have at times been inclined to rank the authority of early citations too highly, and at other times to undervalue them as unduly. Some have sought to give them an authority superior to that of other witnesses, and others have regarded them as being, almost as a matter of course, lax, careless, and incapable of showing what the passage really read, which the author quoted or intended to quote. Both of these estimates are incorrect as a general fact, though each may at times be perfectly true."

"It is, indeed, said that the laxity of the early Fathers is such in their citations that they can help us to no certain conclusion. It is also objected that they quote passages in forms in which there is no reason to suppose that they ever existed in copies of the New Testament; and that they sometimes quote as Scripture that which is not in the Bible at all; and if these points are established, it is said that it is useless to rely on anything so indefinite and misleading. Now, all this and more might be true, and yet the utility of patristic citations would not be rendered void; for what if the same things might be said of our modern English writers? Are there not many who interweave the words of Scripture into their discourses, in such a way that they do not give precisely what is found in the sacred books, even though they show abundantly whence the thoughts, and even the leading words, were taken? And just so is it with the early Fathers. They used the words and expressions of Scripture in what they wrote, even when the construction and form of the sentence was greatly changed. Such citations are simply to be taken for what they are worth. If the question is, whether such a leading word is or is not to be read in a passage, a very loose citation, or even allusion, may show that the writer in question recognised it. So, too, when there is a mere allusion; it may be amply sufficient in proof that a writer knew a particular passage, the genuineness of which as a whole may be under discussion."

"The value of citations as sources of criticism is not to be estimated by what they are, or may seem to be, when standing alone; it is in connection with the other authorities that they have a peculiar value. Thus, an expression evidently taken from the New Testament by a Father, but in a form found neither in manuscript or version, may have been, perhaps, some mere lax allusion of his own, or an interweaving of something taken from the New Testament into the line of his argument or discourse. But if a Father cites a passage, definitely agreeing with one class of ancient witnesses, in a place where they stand opposed to some other testimonies, there need be prima facie no doubt that he actually quotes what was in his copy; and thus he materially confirms that class of witnesses. But if a Father says distinctly that a reading which he quotes was that of one particular Gospel, and that another reading which he mentions was that of the parallel passage in another Gospel, or if he expressly rests on the words and phrases of a reading, and states unequivocally that they were so and so, his evidence has very great weight; and it is in itself a proof, not indeed that the reading is of necessity genuine, but at least that it was current in the time of the Father in question: if otherwise it is well confirmed, few lections could be better attested. Also, if the general citations of a Father are proved by comparative criticism to rank high, even his obiter dicta are worthy of very considerable attention, to say the least. The value, however, of patristic testimony in comparative criticism is, in general, the converse of this: for as such quotations are occasional and fragmentary, they must be regarded as rather attesting those MSS. and versions with which they are at all in characteristic accordance.

"Before a judgment can be at all rightly given of the critical value of the citations of any one Father, it is needful that his writings should be carefully studied; that his mode of using Holy Scripture should be known, and that it should be seen whether he is tolerably uniform in his mode of quoting the same passages; and if not, whether the circumstances of time and place can at all account for the variation. Also, in the writings of the same Father, attention should be paid to the nature of the work in which a quotation occurs; for more verbal exactitude might be reasonably looked for in an exposition than in a discourse or a hortatory treatise in which Scripture is more casually cited."

"It requires that some judgment should be exercised in making citations from the writings of the Fathers; for they have not unfrequently been quoted for readings which they did not really maintain, and which they even repudiated. This has arisen in part from the mistakes of copyists, and the ill-directed care of some editors, who thought that they were doing good service when they altered and emended the Scripture quotations by means of the common printed text. It is therefore necessary always to examine a supposed patristic citation with the context; for this will often supply good proof of what the writer really had in his copy of the New Testament.

"Thus, whenever it is possible, an edition should be used which has been formed from good MSS., especially if the variations of other copies are noted. Good service was done in this respect to the works of Eusebius, by the late Dr. Gaisford. And still it must be remembered, that if a Father reads a passage sometimes in the same manner as it is found in good ancient authorities, and at other times it is found in his works in the same form as in recent copies, it can hardly be doubted that in the latter case it has been remodelled by a copyist.

"Patristic citations alone have very little weight; such citations, even when in accordance with a version, have but little more; but when a citation is in accordance with some ancient MSS. and translations, it possesses great corroborative value. It is as confirming a reading known independently to exist, that citations are of the utmost importance. If alone, or nearly alone, they may be looked at as mere casual adaptations of the words of the New Testament.

"The early writers are of far higher importance than those who lived after the beginning of the fourth century; and thus when patristic citations are compared, the age of the writer must not be overlooked. It is useless to balance those who lived from the fifth to the seventh century against those of the second and third. Particular attention should always be paid to the express statement of a Father with regard to a reading; for it at least shows what he had in his copy (if what he wrote has been accurately transmitted), even if it does not lead us direct to the true reading.

"At times no conclusion can be drawn from the silence of Fathers as to any particular passage; at other times such silence is very significant: for if remarks are made, sentence by sentence, and almost word by word, on a portion of Scripture, and then a portion is passed by in silence, and then the writer again resumes in the same minute manner; and if the portion thus unnoticed is omitted in other authorities, it will not be doubted by those who know what evidence of this kind means, that such a passage was not contained in the copy used by such a Father.

"Also, if Fathers with general consent exhibit no acquaintance with a passage, which might seem to be important in a controversy in which they were engaged, it can only be concluded that it was not in their copies: this will be strengthened if they quote the immediate context of such passage; and this will be regarded as a confirmed certainty if such omission (or rather non-insertion) is found in good MSS. and versions which we have received.

"Thus, with care and caution, good evidence may be obtained from the Fathers; not independent, not that which ranks above MSS., but of that collateral kind which, in cases really doubtful, will often have a determining value."

“ When a reading is found in a Father utterly discordant with all contemporary or other early authority, it may be quite right to mention the reading so found, but to attach no authority to it per se, until it has been examined and vindicated.

“ It should also be observed that when a reading is cited from a Father, it must be investigated whether the passage is really taken from the portion of Scripture under examination. Mistakes have often been made in referring to a patristic passage which really applies to one of the Gospels, as if it had to do with what is parallel in one of the others; also at times, when an Old Testament passage is cited in the New, a passage in a Father may certainly relate to the place in the Old Testament, and thus unless the LXX. and the New Testament are greatly at variance, it would not be a safe procedure to quote such a place in support of any reading in the New.

“ In general, it must be borne in mind that copyists and editors have had the tendency to adapt the Scripture passages in Fathers to that to which they were themselves accustomed; and thus a reading which differs from the oldest authorities as a class, when found in an early Father, is by no means conclusive that that was the reading of which he approved: while, on the other hand, a reading in a Father which differs from the recent copies and accords with the most ancient may be regarded as undoubtedly the reading of the Father himself. Thus in many cases patristic citations, though given, are not intended to claim any sort of authority; they are stated rather in connection with the fact of such occurrences, than as supposing that the actual form of the patristic citation has been transmitted to us.”

“ In the larger Greek New Testament of Lachmann, the readings of Irenæus, Origen, Cyprian, Hilary, and Lucifer, are stated very carefully; all these having been re-examined by Butmann, or by Lachmann himself, and the reference to the place in which each may be found is mentioned very clearly. If complaint be made that the range of authorities is not sufficiently extended, it must be owned that what is given is in a far more clear, intelligible, and satisfactory form than what had appeared in previous editions.”

“ A farther attempt has been made by Tregelles to extend the limits of ascertained evidence from Fathers. In his edition of the Greek Testament will be found all the citations that he could gather from the Fathers, Greek and Latin, of the first three centuries, including Eusebius and others, who belong partly to the fourth; and besides these there are given the citations of the Latin Fathers, on which Lachmann relied as authorities for the old Latin text. Eusebius is taken as the limit to which the Greek examination is carried, for two reasons; 1st, because he is on the line of demarcation between the earlier text, and that which afterwards became widely diffused; and, 2nd, because of the absolute necessity of confining such an examination within such limits as might be practicable for one individual to reach in any moderate number of years. It should be stated, that in this work, the citations of Irenæus and Origen, even, have not been taken from preceding investigators; but after the citations have been independently gathered, they are compared with the citations published by Griesbach and Lachmann. No actual quotation is intentionally omitted; though not a few that superficially appear to be such, have been passed by in silence after a thorough investigation, from its seeming to be certain that they do not actually relate to the passage with which they have been connected. The result is that from Tregelles’s notes will be seen all the patristic evidence, with full references to the passages in the works themselves, which has been observed as at all bearing on the reading of the text during the three first centuries and more.

"It is to be hoped that some scholars possessed of competent leisure will carry out an intention which they have expressed, to make a combined examination of the early Fathers on an extensive scale. Such a work would thoroughly supersede the partial examinations, and limited investigations, which have been just mentioned; and they would thus become part of the permanent materials to be used by all connected with critical studies. Those who have been hitherto engaged in an investigation of the kind (and they have been but few) can rightly apprehend the benefit to criticism likely to arise from such a combined effort to collect thoroughly all the patristic testimonies." *

Results of the Discussion of Recensions.

"The earnest discussion of recension systems has not been fruitless. Even if the result has not been the discovery of what was sought, the actual advantage gained has not been small. The sons who dug deeply all over the vineyard which their father had bequeathed them, did not find the treasure of which they were in quest, but the increased fruitfulness of the soil amply repaid them: so has it been in this case.

"Not one of the definitions has been void of some foundation in fact; not one of the alleged families, on any system, is there but what has a traceable resemblance amongst those that have been attributed to it. On the other hand, no facts which have been used to impugn the systematic arrangements can be rightly left out of consideration, and their ascertainment has been one of the most important results of the inquiry.

"The issue of the examination is partly negative and partly positive. The former may be first stated. We may be satisfied—

"1st. That there is no proof of any recension of the text ever having formerly taken place, or any revision on an extensive scale: it is evident that any corrections must have been partial and local, springing from the copyists, and not from authority, ecclesiastical or critical.

"2nd. That no definite recension was needed for the text to have assumed such a form as that which it presents in the later documents.

"3rd. That it is vain to establish the later MSS. as authoritative on the ground of precise internal agreement, seeing that such uniformity does not exist.

"4th That the gradations of text in different MSS. is such that it is impossible to draw definite lines of classification, without admitting so many exceptions as almost to destroy the application of such a system.

"5th. That, therefore, the object proposed in laying down such systems cannot be attained by this means, and thus the evidence of particular documents cannot be avoided by the consideration that they in such testimony differ from their proper recension.

"Amongst the positive results have been, that we know—

" 1st. The general difference between the more ancient MSS. versions and citations, and the copies of general circulation in more recent times.

" 2nd. That this presents in many respects a line of demarcation between the more ancient and the more recent texts.

" 3rd. That this classification must not be understood as though each of the portions, so distributed, had not their own points of difference amongst themselves.

" 4th. That thus various documents may form what may be termed groups, either as to their text throughout, or in particular books or passages.

" 5th. That the more ancient MSS. versions and citations which we possess, range themselves under what we know from their combined testimony to be the more ancient text.

" 6th. That amongst the documents so allied, there are such shades of difference, and characteristic peculiarities, that the versions and MSS. might be easily contemplated as ramifying into two sub-classes.

" 7th. That often the identity of reading between two or more documents is such, that when one is known to contain such a variation, it may almost of a certainty be found in the others; so that the alliance is most close and striking; but that in such cases examination must be made whether there are such sufficient proofs of their independence as enable us to consider them as corroborative of each other, and not merely mechanical repetitions.

" 8th. That the most ancient documents in general are sufficiently dissimilar to enable us to regard their testimony, when combined, as possessed of a cumulative weight."

" Thus the study of what has been written respecting recensions is of value, not only as making critical works intelligible to students, but also as establishing facts which remain unshaken respecting documents, their affinities, and the texts which they contain."*

Tentative Reduction of Principles to Rules.

" Critical rules are valuable in their place; they may mislead those who are incapable of understanding their application; but where there is ability to comprehend and use them, they may often guide in the right direction, and, at all events, hinder from going astray."

" The principles stated by Lachmann and by Tischendorf, especially the former, are very useful in judging of the actual state of the evidence and its bearing on facts under discussion. All that has been said of the nature and origin of various readings will be important to be borne in mind.

" The object of textual criticism being remembered,—viz., the ascertainment on grounds of evidence what the sacred authors actually wrote,—it will be seen that no rules will be sufficient, unless the whole subject be remembered; while, if the facts in general are borne in mind, certain principles may aid materially in their application and use.

1. Where there is no variation in authorities, criticism has no place; and as to all the text thus transmitted we may feel a well-assured confidence.

" 2. If the authorities are all but unanimous, the confidence is but little shaken ; unless, indeed, the dissentient witnesses possess some peculiar weight.

" 3. If the reading of the ancient authorities in general is unanimous, there can be but little doubt that it should be followed, whatever may be the latter testimonies ; for it is most improbable that the independent testimony of early MSS. versions and Fathers, should accord with regard to something entirely groundless.

" 4. A reading found in versions alone can claim but little authority, especially if it be one which might naturally be introduced by translators in general : it might then resemble in character the Italic supplements to modern versions.

" 5. A reading found in patristic citations alone rests on a yet weaker basis than one which only occurs in versions.

" 6. The readings respecting which a judgment must be formed are those where the evidence is really divided in such a way that it is needful to inquire on which side the balance preponderates. In such cases it is not enough to enumerate authorities : they must be examined point by point. OTHER THINGS BEING EQUAL, (a) an early citation will sometimes be decisive, especially if it is given in express terms. (b) Also, if one reading accords with a parallel passage, and the other does not ; (c) or if one introduces an amplification met with elsewhere ; (d) or if one seems to avoid a difficulty which the other does not ; (e) or if there is one well-attested reading, and several others which may probably have been taken from it ; (f) or if the one reading might be easily accounted for on principles connected with the known origin of variations : in such cases it is not difficult, on the whole, to form a judgment as to what was probably the original reading. It is quite true that at times it may be very doubtful whether the quantity of direct evidence may not overbalance all modes of procedure derived from the application of a principle, and as to which two seemingly conflicting considerations ought to have most weight.

" 7. When no certainty is attainable, it will be well for the case to be left as doubtful ; the reading which has strong [? the stronger] claims on the attention taking its place in the text, and that which seems almost equal on grounds of evidence standing in the margin. As to additions or non-insertions brackets in the text or margin may be well employed. It may not seem satisfactory to leave such points as doubtful ; but this is far wiser than to pretend to certainty in cases in which it is unattainable. A critical text of the Greek New Testament, with no indications of doubt, or of the inequality of the evidence, is never satisfactory to a scholar. It gives no impression of the ability of the editor to discriminate accurately as to the value of evidence ; and it seems to place on a level, as to authority, readings which are unquestionably certain, and those which have been accepted as perhaps the best attested.

" 8. It must be remembered that sometimes we have direct early evidence of such a kind that we are certain of the reading of the second or third century ; then we are not left to the ordinary application of the balance of EXISTING authorities, but we can take our stand as early as the express testimony carries us. At times, again, we have early evidence of the variations of MSS. then noticed. This enables us to use this information in addition to what we can gather from the sources still available.

"9. At times a reading seems to be supported by a very small quantity of authority, numerically; and yet when all the evidence is examined, it is found to receive, on various sides, so much partial support, that it is actually better attested than any one of the readings which might be placed in competition with it."*

Account of Preparatory Labours.

"After the publication of the Greek and English Revelation, I applied myself almost unremittingly to my Greek Testament. I found that it was important, whenever practicable, to collate the ancient MSS. in uncial letters over again, in order to avoid, if possible, the errors which are found in existing collations, and to this part of the work I devoted myself.

"The mode in which I proceeded with my collations was the following:—

"I procured many copies of the same edition of the Greek New Testament, so that all the MSS. might be compared with exactly the same text.

"When a MS. was before me, I marked in one of these copies every variation, however slight; I noted the beginning of every page, column, and line, so that I can produce the text of every MS. which I have collated, line for line. This gave a kind of certainty to my examinations, and I was thus prevented from hastily overlooking readings. I marked all readings which are corrections by a later hand, and all erasures, etc. At leisure, I compared my collation with any others which had been previously published; and I made in my notebook a list of all variations (such as readings differently given, or readings not noticed by former collators); then I went over this list with the MS., re-examining all these passages; and to prevent all doubt, I made a separate memorandum of every discrepancy, so that, in all such cases, I feel an absolute certainty as to the readings of the MSS.

"I used, of course, a separate Greek Testament for each collation; otherwise the marks of various readings, beginning of lines, etc., would have caused inextricable confusion.

"Also I traced one whole page, in facsimile, of each MS. which I collated when abroad: this is often important, for the writing of a MS. is one of the criteria as to its age, etc."

"Besides these, I have examined and made a facsimile of almost every one of the MSS. which have been published, and also collated the printed texts."

"These details of my proceedings, as to the mode of collation, and the particulars which I give of the different MSS. which I have examined, are mostly for the information of those who have some acquaintance with biblical criticism. The letters A, B, C, etc., in connection with MSS., are the marks of reference used in critical works in denoting the respective MSS.

"Before I went abroad in 1845, I had collated the CODEX AUGIENSIS (F of St. Paul's Epistles) in the library of Trinity College, Cambridge, to which the Rev. W. CARUS, with great kindness, procured me access. This is an important MS., and the collation previously published is only partial, and not very accurate. It was made by Wetstein, who gathered certain readings from it, during a very short time when he saw it at Heidelberg. As it has been supposed that this MS. was a copy of the Codex Boernerianus (G of St. Paul's Epistles) at Dresden, or vice versâ, it was important to be able to compare the readings of this MS. in all places, with those of that Codex (published by Matthæi in 1791). While this re-collation of F proved that, in many places, it agreed with G, in readings previously unnoticed, yet it was abundantly evident that neither of these MSS. was copied from the other: both probably were transcribed from the same exemplar.

"One principal object which I had in going abroad was to endeavour to collate for myself the Vatican MS. (B). This important document was collated for Bentley by an Italian named Mico, and this collation was published in 1799; it was subsequently collated (with the exception of the Gospels of Luke and John) by Birch. A third collation (made previously to either of these, in 1669,) by Bartolocci, remains in MS. at Paris. As this is the most important of all New Testament MSS., I had compared the two published collations carefully with each other: I found that they differed in nearly two thousand places: many of these discrepancies were readings noticed by one and not by the other. I went to Rome, and during the five months that I was there, I sought diligently to obtain permission to collate the MS. accurately, or at least to examine it in the places in which Birch and Bentley differ with regard to its readings. All ended in disappointment. I often saw the MS., but I was hindered from transcribing any of its readings. I read, however, many passages, and have since been noted down several important readings."

"My especial object at the Vatican was thus entirely frustrated; and this I regret the more from my increased conviction of the value and importance of the Vatican MS. I inspected several other MSS. in the Vatican library; I was only, however, able to consult them in particular passages. One of these is the Codex Bezae Cantabrigiae (B in the Apocalypse: the Vatican MS. is defective in that book); one of the three ancient copies which contain the Revelation."

"I now have to speak of collations not merely attempted but executed; all these collations having been made in the manner above described.

"At Rome, I collated the Codex Passionei, containing the Acts and Catholic Epistles (G), and those of St. Paul (J): this MS. is in the Bibliotheca Angelica, belonging to the Augustine monastery, to which access was allowed me by Dr. GIUSEPPE PALERMO, the librarian.

"At Florence, I collated the New Testament part of the Codex Amiatinus; a most important MS. of the Latin translation of Jerome, belonging to the sixth century. I have to acknowledge the kindness which I received at the Laurentian library, from Signor del FURIA, the librarian, and the aid afforded me there as to all I wished to examine. The Codex Amiatinus had been previously collated, partly by Fleck, and partly for him; this collation is, however, so defective, and so inaccurate in many important respects, that it gives a very inadequate idea of the real text of this noble MS. Fleck's (so called) facsimile, too, gives no proper representation of the regular and beautiful writing of the MS., nor even of the stichometry of the lines: it could not have been traced from the MS. itself.

"At Modena, Count GIOVANNI GALVANI, the librarian at the ducal palace, enabled me to use the Codex Mutinensis, 196. The ancient writing of this MS. (H) contains only the Acts of the Apostles (with some chasms); the Catholic and Pauline Epistles are in a later hand: this MS. had been examined previously with so little exactitude, that my collation was virtually the first; except, indeed, that of Tischendorf, with which I afterwards became acquainted, but which, except extracts, remains unpublished.

"At Venice, I collated the Codex Nani (U of the Gospels) now in the library of St. Mark: no collation of this MS. had been previously published, except as to particular places. Although the general text is that of the later copies, yet in many remarkable readings it accords with the Alexandrian (or more ancient) class of MSS. The librarians at St. Mark's, Venice, who kindly afforded me the fullest access to all that I wanted, were Dr. GIUSEPPE VALENTINELLI, and (the late) Signor ANDREA BARETTA. Those who know how MONTFAUCON was treated, a century and a half ago, at the library of St.

Mark (see his 'Diarium Italicum,' page 41) will understand how gladly I acknowledge this courtesy, I know by experience what MONTFAUCON describes, for I have met elsewhere with the same kind of exclusion.

"At Munich I collated the Codex Monacensis (X) of the Gospels (formerly Landshutensis, and previously Ingoldstadiensis). This MS. is now in the University Library at Munich, having been removed, with the university, first from Ingoldstadt to Landshut, and thence to its present location. Through the kindness of the late Dr. HARTER, one of the librarians, I was able to use this MS. out of the library; and this, of course, facilitated my labour in collating it."

"In connexion with this MS., I may express my obligation to Dr. SCHOLZ for the aid which he gave me, during his visit to England, previous to my going on the continent, by informing me where different MSS. (and this one in particular) are now to be found.

"At Basle, I collated the Codex Basileensis B vi. 21 (E of the Gospels). Besides comparing my collation with that of Wetstein, and verifying all discrepancies, I had through the kindness of Professor MULLER, of Basle, the opportunity of using a collation which he had himself made of this same MS. I also collated that part of the MS. B vi. 27, which contains the Gospels (1). This MS., though written in curse letters, is, in the Gospels, of great importance, from the character of the text which it contains. To the late Professor DE WETTE I am under great obligation, for the kindness with which he procured me the use of these MSS. out of the library.

"I returned to England in 1846, disappointed indeed as to the Vatican MS., but well satisfied that the time had not been wasted, which I had devoted to the recollation of other documents; for I thus learned how often I should merely have repeated the errors of others, if I had not re-examined the documents for myself.

"In 1847, I collated (G of the Gospels) the Codex Harleianus 5684 in the British Museum. Of this same MS. there exists a fragment in the library of Trinity College, Cambridge, which I met with in 1845, while examining Bentley's books and papers."

"In the early part of 1849, through the kindness of the Rev. WM. CURETON, I became acquainted with the very important and valuable Syriac copy of part of the Gospels, to which he first drew attention amongst the MSS. in the British Museum from the Nitrian monasteries. It was extremely confirming to the critical opinions which I had previously formed and published, to find the text of this hitherto unknown version, altogether ancient in its readings, and thus an important witness to the ancient text. It was worth my while to have learned Syriac, if it had only been that it enabled me to use the Curetonian Syriac version for myself.

"When Professor Tischendorf was bringing out his second Leipsic edition of the Greek Testament, he sent me the part containing the Gospels before the volume was completed: this led me to compare the readings which he has cited, in that part of the New Testament, out of any MSS. which I had collated, with the variations which I had noted: I immediately sent the result to Tischendorf, so that, when the complete volume appeared in the summer of 1849, he gave corrigenda in his Prolegomena, as to the readings of the MSS. of the Gospels E G U X.

"In 1849, I was again able to go abroad to collate; and I then remained at Paris for several weeks. I first collated Codex Claromontanus, D of St. Paul's Epistles; a MS. of peculiar value, both because of its antiquity and its text; although beautifully written, it is difficult to collate, from the number of correctors who have interfered with the original text. The primary reading is, however, almost invariably discernible.

"The collation of the Codex Vaticanus made by Bartolucci is amongst the MSS. of the library at Paris (No. 53); I transcribed it as a contribution to the correct knowledge of what that MS. contains: this collation is, however, very imperfect, though useful as sometimes supplying readings omitted by Bentley or Birch, and as confirming one or the other of the two collations.

"Next I began to collate the Codex Cyprius, K of the Gospels; but a few days after I had commenced, a severe attack of cholera brought me very low; and though, through the mercy of God, it was not long before I was convalescent, I was so weakened, that it was impossible for me to resume my collations until after a considerable interval.

"In the spring of 1850 I returned to Paris; and after finishing the collation of the Codex Cyprius, I took up the Colbert MS. 2844. This MS., in cursive letters, is noted 33 in the Gospels, 13 Acts and Cath. Epp., and 17 in St. Paul's Epistles. This is the MS. which Eichhorn speaks of as full of the most excellent and oldest readings; styling it 'the Queen of the MSS. in cursive letters.' It had not, however, received such attention from collators as it merits: this may probably have arisen from its injured condition, which is such as to make it a work of great difficulty to collate it with accuracy; the time, too, needed for this is greater than what most of those who merely examine MSS. would like to expend on one document. Larroque, whose extracts were used by Mill, collated this MS. very negligently. Griesbach recollated eighteen chapters of St. Matthew, from which he gathered about three hundred readings not noticed by Larroque. He also made some extracts from the Epistles. It was his desire that some scholar who had access to the Bibliothèque du Roi would carefully recollate this excellent MS.

"Although Scholz speaks of having collated this MS. entirely, yet his examination of it must have been very cursory; for he cites readings from it utterly unlike those which it actually contains, besides a vast number of omissions. I have taken particular care to be certain of the readings which I cite, by re-examining with the MS. everything in which I differ from others.

"It is difficult to convey a just notion of the present defaced condition of this MS. The leaves, especially in the lower part, have been grievously injured by damp; so that part of the vellum is utterly destroyed. The leaves have often stuck together, and, in separating them, parts have been entirely defaced. The book of Acts is in the worst condition: the leaves there were so firmly stuck together, that, when they were separated, the ink has adhered rather to the opposite page than to its own; so that, in many leaves, the MS. can only be read by observing how the ink has set off (as would be said of a printed book), and thus reading the Greek words backwards; I thus obtained the reading of every line for many pages, where nothing could be seen on the page itself: in some places, where part of a leaf is wholly gone from decay, the writing which was once on it can be read from the set-off. It might be thought by some unaware of this, that readings were quoted by mere blunder from parts of the MS. which no longer exist.

"I have had some experience in the collation of MSS.; but none has ever been so wearisome to my eyes, and exhaustive of every faculty of attention, as this was.

"After this valuable but wearying MS., I collated Codex Campensis, M of the Gospels.

"Then I re-examined the Codex Claromontanus, D of St. Paul's Epistles; so as to compare my collation with that of Tischendorf, especially as to corrections of different hands. That I might form a more accurate judgment, I made a facsimile of the different kinds of alterations, and then classified the others according to their agreement in form of letters, ink, etc.

"A few months before my stay in Paris, in 1850, M. Achille Joubinal had published a pamphlet complaining of the carelessness with which (he said) the MSS. in the Bibliothèque du Roi are kept. He said that thirty-four leaves of the Codex Claromontanus, which had been cut out by Aynon, and sold to the Earl of Oxford in 1707, and restored by him (in 1729), had again disappeared. As I had examined this part of the MS., as well as the rest, in 1849, I was surprised at the statement, as well as grieved. However, I had the satisfaction to find that this was all a stupidly and shamefully erroneous assertion; the leaves were as safe as when I had collated them in the May preceding. They still remain in Lord Oxford's binding, with a label appended to them to record his liberality in restoring them to the Paris library. They are kept among other show books in a glass case, as conspicuous in that library as 'Charlemagne's Bible' is in the British Museum.

"There was a single leaf lying loose in the MS., which had also been separated and sold by Aynon (folio 149), at the foot of which is written, 'Feuillet renvoyé de Hollande par Mr. Stosch, Mars 1720.' To render this less liable to abstraction, I procured it to be fixed into its place before I left Paris. My critical labours in Paris concluded with making facsimiles of the MSS. and fragments (besides those which I have spoken of as collated by myself) L and W of the Gospels, and H (the Coislin fragments) of St. Paul's Epistles. The text of these three documents has been published.

"The kindness and courtesy of M. HASE, 'Ancien Conservateur' of the library, deserve to be gratefully mentioned by me: I have also to express my obligation to M. EMMANUEL MILLER, an assistant-librarian in 1849, and to M. LETRONNE (son of the late well-known Academician), who occupied the same place in 1850.

"At Hamburg, through Dr. PETERSEN's kindness, I was allowed to have access to the city library for twice the number of hours that it is commonly open. Here I collated the Codex Seidelii, H of the Gospels, which no one seems to have used critically since the very inaccurate and defective collation of Wolf. Of course, I found that the [second] fragment in the library of Trinity College, Cambridge, belongs to it.

"I also collated the Uffenbach fragment of the Epistle to the Hebrews (53 Paul) twice, with what care I could.

"At Berlin, whither I next went, I saw much of Prof. LACHMANN: he discussed many points connected with New Testament criticism; it was very interesting to hear from himself an explanation of his plan, etc., in his Greek Testament. He showed me the books from which he has condensed his Latin readings. These collations are very nicely inserted in different Latin New Testaments. I regret exceedingly that they have not been published; for they would form a valuable contribution to the criticism of the Vulgate. For instance, in 1 Pet. iii. 21, the addition found in the common Vulgate, 'deglutiens mortem, ut vitæ æternæ heredes efficeremur,' is enclosed in Lachmann's edition within brackets, with the note, 'om. F. al.' showing that it is omitted in the Codex Fuldensis and another. To what other he refers, it is of some importance to know; for Porson (whose knowledge of Latin biblical MSS. was great) says of this passage, that the Lectio[n]arium Lucoviense (some readings of which were published by Mabillon) was the only copy then known that was free from that addition. The codex alius, however, to which Lachmann alluded, is one of the excellent MSS. at Wolfenbüttel mentioned in his Prolegomena. I entreated Lachmann to publish his Latin collations,—little thinking how soon this scholar was to be taken from us.

"I went to Leipsic, to compare my collations with some of those executed by TISCHENDORF. For our mutual benefit I made the comparison of our respective collations of K, U, and X of the Gospels, of H, and G (Cod. Passionei) of the Acts, of the Epistles J (Cod. Passionei).

I also recompared my collation of E of the Gospels with that of Professor Müller, which I had seen at Basle, four years before, and I examined it with Tischendorf's own collation. The MS. I in the Gospels had been collated by Dr. Roth, and I compared his collation with mine. These were all the MSS. of which Tischendorf had collations available for comparison; those whose text he has published, he had copied. I made out lists of all discrepancies, so that I might get the variations recompared in the MSS. themselves, so as to ensure (as far as possible) perfect accuracy.

"I communicated to Tischendorf my examination of his extracts from the Codex Claromontanus; my notes served to correct some oversights of his, and to confirm him in other places.

"At Dresden I examined the Codex Boernerianus (G Paul.) especially as to those places in which its text, as published by Matthæi, differs from that of F. The resemblance of this MS. to the Codex Sangallensis, Δ of the Gospels (published in a lithographed facsimile by Rettig), is even more evident in looking at the MS. itself, than in examining the facsimile specimen in Matthæi. At the beginning of the Codex Boernerianus there is one leaf, and at the end there are eleven, written on in a later hand exactly like that of the leaves prefixed to the Codex Sangallensis. It is thus evident that these MSS. are the severed parts of the same book.

"On my return towards England, I examined the palimpsest fragments of the Gospels P and Q in the library at WOLFENBÜTTEL: I think that the book in which they are, contains faint traces of more old writing than has as yet been deciphered, though it appears that Knittel, who published P and Q, and the Gothic fragments, took pains to ascertain that the other writing is at least not biblical. Through Professor Lachmann's introduction, I received there every kindness from Dr. SCHÖNEMANN, the librarian (become quite blind), and Dr. HOECK, the Secretary.

"In passing through Holland, I took the opportunity of examining, at UTRECHT, the Codex Boreelii, F of the Gospels; Professor ROYAARDS kindly introduced me to Professor VINKE (who published Heringa's collation of the text of this MS.), and to Mr. ADER, the librarian. This MS. was found at Arnhem a few years ago, after it had been lost for about two centuries. It was still just in the same state as when it was found, the leaves being all loose in a box: in fact, from its not having been bound and catalogued, it was some time before it could be found for me to examine in order to make a facsimile.

"In speaking of the MSS. which I have myself collated, I may now mention the latest which I have thus examined;—the Codex Leicesterensis (69 Gospels, 31 Acts and Cath. Epp., 37 Paul., 14 Apoc.), which, though not older than the fourteenth century, contains a text in many respects ancient; and it was the desire of several scholars that I should recollate this MS., which is the most important of those in cursive letters which we have in this country. Application was made to the Town Council of Leicester, to whom it belongs, on my behalf; and through the kind exertions of GEORGE TOLLER, Esq., then the Mayor of that place, this MS. was transmitted to me, in the autumn of the year 1852, to use in my own study. (Due security was, of course, given for its safety and restoration.) Through this particular act of courtesy, which deserves my fullest acknowledgment, I was able without inconvenience to collate this valuable MS."

"To the MSS. examined by me I may now [Addenda to PRINTED TEXT] add the Palimpsest fragments of St. Luke [R] amongst the Nitrian MSS. in the British Museum. They consist of forty-five leaves (of the sixth century, as seems to me), in which Severus of Antioch against Grammaticus has been written in Syriac over the Greek. The older writing is in parts very difficult to read; but by pains I can in a strong light discern almost every letter: this is, however, a great strain on the eye of a collator."

[Dr. Tregelles's chief subsequent labours may be noticed here. He deciphered with much difficulty an important palimpsest belonging to the British and Foreign Bible Society (Codex Zacynthius or Z), containing portions of St. Luke's Gospel; and the text was published in 'facsimile' type by Messrs. Bagster and Sons in 1861 under his editorship. Before printing St. Paul's Epistles, he collated at Oxford the cursive MS. numbered 47, and included its readings in his apparatus. In 1862 he collated at Erlangen the cursive MS. of the Apocalypse numbered 1, (the lost original of the Erasmus text,) which had been lately identified by Delitzsch: he published the results in the second part of Delitzsch's Handschriftliche Funde (Leipzig, 1862), as well as in the apparatus to Part VI. of his own edition. Some of the MSS. discovered and eventually published by Tischendorf were also copied or collated independently by Dr. Tregelles; for instance, portions of the Sinai MS. (the Catholic Epistles entire, and detached passages), and the whole of those parts of the MSS. of the Gospels designated Γ and Δ which now belong to the Bodleian Library.]

"Besides the MSS. which I have collated, or re-examined, I have endeavoured, with some measure of success, to restore what remains of the Dublin palimpsest Z of St. Matthew's Gospel.

"Dr. Barrett, the discoverer of the ancient writing of these important fragments, when he edited them in 1801, gave but a very partial description of the state of the different leaves; and thus it was wholly a matter of uncertainty, when but a part of a page appeared on the engraved plate, whether the rest of the leaf still existed, but was illegible, or whether it was no longer extant.

There are also many places in which lines, words, or letters, in the pages in other respects tolerably perfect, are wanting in the published edition."

"The MS. being in such a state, I had to endeavour chymically to restore the words and letters in the parts still extant, which are blank in Dr. Barrett's publication. And in this I was very successful; so that in the existing portion of the MS., there is hardly a reading as to which any doubt remains. After doing what I could to the portions previously identified, I re-examined the whole of the volume in search of the one leaf not previously found. At length I noticed, that, in one place, the texture of the vellum was like that of the fragments of St. Matthew: and though there was not a letter or line of the older writing to be seen in any position or light, I determined to try, as an experiment, whether the application would bring out any buried letters. In doing this, it was beyond all expectations of mine to see the ancient writing, first gradually, and then definitely, appear on the surface."

"After my return from the continent, I have at different times sent to various libraries lists of the discrepancies between Tischendorf's collations and mine; from Basle, Munich, and Venice, I received prompt and satisfactory replies to my inquiries, so that I have full testimony as to the readings, in every place of doubt.

Signor VELLUDO compared the list I sent with Codex U at Venice; Dr. STRÖHL did the same with X at Munich; and E and 1, at Basle, were examined by Dr. C. L. ROTH. They are entitled to thanks from me, and from all who desire complete accuracy in critical data.

"I also sent to Florence the places in which Tischendorf differed from me, as to the text of the Codex Amiatinus; and Signor FRANCESCO DEL FURIA promptly sent me a full statement (made by his son, the Abbate del Furia) of each reading.

"When I was at Leipsic, in 1850, I found that Tischendorf's edition of the Latin New Testament from this Codex was about half printed. I had sent him a transcript of my collation; and thus there was a confirmation of several readings. I regretted, however, that the printing should have taken place before the passages in which we at all differed should have been recompared at Florence.

"It would have been a comparatively easy thing to have drawn out a select statement of the readings of the MSS., borrowing the citations of the versions from previous editions, and giving the citations from the fathers similarly on second-hand authority. But this was not the object for which I had toiled. I wanted to give all the readings supported by ancient MSS., and not a mere selection. . . And further, I should not be satisfied without doing my utmost to give the citations from the versions with all the correctness that I could; and so, too, I found it needful to examine and re-examine the writings of the fathers (as far as Eusebius inclusive) so as not to repeat citations without knowing the bearings of each passage with the context: hence has arisen a great expenditure of time and labour. Also, as I wanted (what has never been done fully) to give the evidence both for and against every reading, where there is really any balance of testimony, a vast amount of work was needed. In all this, the condition of my eyes, after collations and trying study of several years, has retarded me in a manner which I can hardly describe.

"Of the ANCIENT VERSIONS, I use and examine myself the LATIN and the SYRIAC.

"The LATIN consist of (i) the OLD LATIN, as found in the Codices Vercellensis, Veronensis, and Colbertinus, (ij) the revised text of Upper Italy, as in the Codex Brixianus, (iij) a revised text, in which the influence of ancient MSS. is discernible, as found in the Codex Bobbiensis (this text was unknown to Lachmann), and (iv) the Vulgate of Jerome, in which I follow ancient MSS. Besides these, many Latin copies contain a mixed text. Many writers have unsuitably blended all the non-Hieronymian Latin texts, under the name of Italic.

"The SYRIAC are (i) the Curetonian, from the Nitrian monasteries of which mention has previously been made. —(ij) The version commonly printed as the Peshito: of this, I collated the whole of Rich's MS., 7157 in the British Museum: this MS. is a good proof how the Syriac scribes modernised their copies. —(iij) The Harclean, published by White, under the name of the Philoxenian. —(iv) Besides these versions, there is in the Vatican the Lectionary, called by Adler the Jerusalem Syriac; he published many readings from it: I have myself extracted the readings of some passages, and I also possess a transcript of a few leaves."

[On the use made of the other versions see the several Introductory Notices.]

"The versions later than the sixth century do not possess any value as witnesses to the ancient text; their readings may, therefore, be omitted: for it is worse than useless to allow them to encumber a critical page, and to perpetuate citations from them, on the accuracy of which but little reliance can often be placed."

"There is a great deal of truth in the opinion expressed by Dr. Davidson, that it would be far better for the offices of collator of MSS. and editor of the text to be dissociated. But things desirable are not always practicable. It would be far better for an architect not to be compelled also to toil as a quarryman; and yet, if stones could not be otherwise obtained, quarry them himself he must, if he would build at all. An artist is often the grinder of his own colours, and photographers prepare their own materials. If what is needed cannot be obtained ready to hand from the labour of others, those whose special place it is to apply the materials must be themselves preparers.

"There is a danger lest a collator should overvalue what he has toiled on himself. And yet in my own case the authorities of the highest value are those which have been published or collated by others, through whose labours I have benefited. I say this, although I consider that the value of X, 1, 33, 69, and of D F of St. Paul's Epistles, is very great, and that the restoration of parts of Z was an important work: my general critical principles were formed on sufficient data before I began to collate, and thus I was hindered from estimating MSS., etc., because they were connected with my own labours.

"There are many subjects of interest closely linked with the retrospect of my work; it was this that brought me into connection with DE WETTE, the disciple of Griesbach, with whom I had much intercourse, both in Rome and Basle. Thus, too, I met SCHOLZ, who indicated to me, with much kindness, before I left England, where various MSS. had now migrated: and in more recent time, I was thus brought into acquaintance with LACHMANN, the first who edited irrespective of traditional authorities, and with TISCHENDORF, the publisher of so many ancient texts. And all of these, except the last, and not these only, but LAUREANI and MOLZA, the custodi of the Vatican, BARETTA of Venice, HARTER of Munich, CARDINAL ACTON, and others with whom collations have brought me into connection, have, in these few years, passed away from this present earthly scene.

"In this country, also, my labour of collations, etc., has been to me the occasion of intercourse with scholars not a few;—of these one may be specified, the Patriarch of all who have been occupied with Sacred Literature,—Dr. ROUTH." *

ADDENDA AND CORRIGENDA.

IN the Introductory Notice to Part III. Dr. Tregelles promised to complete his work by subjoining additional evidence. "The collation of the Codex Sinaiticus in the Gospels," he wrote, "and of the Codex Vaticanus in St. Matthew and St. Mark from the published edition, will, together with other materials not at first available, form an important supplement to the various readings. I hope to be able to print these Addenda in such a form and arrangement that they may be conveniently used and compared with the various readings subjoined to the text. The sheets containing such supplementary collations will, therefore, be sewn separately, and they will be attached to the volume, when bound, in such a way that the pages of each may lie open together; in this manner all inconvenience of turning from one part to another of the same volume will be obviated." A shorter statement to the same effect is prefixed to Part IV., where Dr. Tregelles adds: "Besides, there will be such corrections of the edition as I have made from my own observations, or have received through the kindness of others." As late as December, 1869, he expressed to me the same intention by letter.

Having been taken into counsel by Mrs. Tregelles respecting the form and contents of the concluding or supplementary Part of the edition, I ventured to urge that the intentions thus signified by Dr. Tregelles should still be carried out as far as might be found reasonably possible; and I undertook a kind of general superintendence of the preparation and publication. The great bulk of the labour, that is, the compilation and arrangement of the evidence of Greek uncial MSS. and most of the corresponding correction of the press, it was necessary to entrust to other hands; and the task has been performed with admirable zeal and industry by the Rev. A. W. Streane, Fellow of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge. Oversights noticed while his manuscript was in my hands have been corrected: systematic verification it is hardly necessary to say, was under the circumstances impracticable.

The utmost limits of admissible Addenda were of course rigorously fixed by the practice of Dr. Tregelles himself. There could be no question of introducing the readings of fresh cursive MSS., or the quotations of later Fathers than those to whom he appealed. But even within these limits selection was morally indispensable. Many details of evidence which would undoubtedly have found a place in Dr. Tregelles's original apparatus, had they been known to him at first, could not be printed in a supplement without increasing its size to an extent disproportionate to their value, and without giving them an unmerited and factitious prominence by the accidental detachment from the general array of evidence. The choice was unavoidably somewhat arbitrary: but it seemed better that a supplement should be provided under these conditions than that it should not be provided at all.

A complete collation of the Sinai MS. for the Gospels, and an employment of recent information for the ascertainment of the true reading of the Vatican MS. in doubtful places, chiefly for the first two Gospels but to a certain extent throughout, were the most essential Addenda from Greek uncial MSS. To these have been added the variations of Greek uncial fragments made known since the printing of the former Parts, together with fresh readings of P, Q, and T of the Gospels obtained by Tischendorf's re-examination: a list is given further on. 'Facsimile' editions have been used where they exist: in other cases there was no resource but to transcribe the readings from the apparatus to Tischendorf's editio octava, though Tischendorf's own lists of passages shew it to be in some instances incomplete. The only Greek uncial fragments omitted are the new leaves of Γ, containing part of St. Matthew's and St. John's Gospels: although they contain some good and interesting readings, their predominant character seemed hardly to claim a place for them, considering their extent. The same consideration still more decisively excluded Π (Cent. IX) and S (A.D. 949) of the Gospels; and also P (Codex Porphyrianus, Cent. IX) in the Acts, where its text is almost exclusively of a very late type. But as P contains a much larger though varying proportion of ancient readings elsewhere (except in 1 Peter), and Dr. Tregelles has used it regularly in the Pauline Epistles and Apocalypse (for which Mr. Streane has added some corrections), it seemed best to include it for the Catholic Epistles, in which indeed Dr. Tregelles had already printed a few readings supplied to him privately by Tischendorf.

In the case of versions selection was peculiarly difficult. The "Jerusalem" Syriac Lectionary, highly valued by Dr. Tregelles, was known only by detached readings when his Gospels were printed. A complete edition having been published at Verona in 1861-4 from the Vatican MS., the only MS. then believed to exist, I have inserted many of the more important new readings, together with a few more from the recently discovered fragments in London and St. Petersburg published by Land. It seemed also worth while to give a few additional Memphitic and Thebaic readings of interest, chiefly noted by Lagarde or Dr. Lightfoot, as these versions have as yet been quite inadequately edited. On the other hand, scarcely any Addenda have been taken from Latin MSS. recently come to light or examined, notwithstanding their undoubted value; the Old and Vulgate Latin evidence being already well represented in Dr. Tregelles's apparatus.

In limiting his patristic citations to the earlier writers, Dr. Tregelles intended to produce their evidence completely. In some cases however he at first overlooked writings, or portions of writings made accessible only in late times. The chief of these are various remains of Origen, unknown to the Benedictine editors, but printed in the supplement attached to the fourteenth volume of Gallandi's Bibliotheca Patrum and in the Catene edited by Cramer, with a few scattered elsewhere; and the Syriac version of the Theophania of Eusebius, published and translated by Lee. About 1858, soon after the issue of the First Part, I began to send Dr. Tregelles my own notes of evidence derived from some of these sources, and they were employed by him in the rest of the edition. In Part II, p. iv, he intimated his intention of using as Corrigenda the corresponding notes on the First Part. I have accordingly thought it best in the case of a primary authority like Origen to insert every additional quotation noted in my own margins, except a few of quite ambiguous reference. The readings of the Syriac Eusebius were collected less exhaustively, and under the circumstances a selection from those collected appeared to suffice. A few additional or more correct readings have been given from Justin Martyr, the Clementine Homilies (especially according to the Codex Ottobonianus discovered by Dressel), and other early authorities occasionally cited by Dr. Tregelles. The text of Cyprian has been materially changed lately by the collations of Hartel: a few selected corrections however, not always coincident with Hartel's own text, were all that it was practicable to introduce. It should be understood that a transfer of a patristic authority from one reading to another, even when no MSS. are mentioned, is usually due to fresh and better information, not to error in the original statement.

Part V contained at the end a short list of Errata in the text and notes of earlier Parts. Others were subsequently communicated to Mrs. Tregelles by various correspondents, and especially by Professor Ezra Abbot of Cambridge, U.S. These various errata, together with such as I had myself noted, and a few in the Apocalypse for the knowledge of which I am indebted to Dr. Scrivener, have been distributed among the Addenda, unimportant misplacements or omissions of accents, breathings, and the like being neglected. Besides errors of the press, I have ventured to correct or modify some erroneous statements of evidence, about which there could be no difference of opinion: that Dr. Tregelles would have wished such corrections to be made is clear, from several passages in letters received from him during the progress of his work. In one of them he writes: "I am most glad of them" (some corrections sent to him), "even if they do convict me of oversight: but I believe that you will understand the kind of labour that it has been to put authorities together, endeavouring to revise all, to collect much that had never been collected, and to bring all into a new and lucid arrangement." Only those who have had some experience of similar tasks can properly appreciate the habitual accuracy of Dr. Tregelles's statements of evidence, notwithstanding his failure of health and eyesight for many years; and his frankness in acknowledging errors was equal to his care in avoiding them.

The additions and corrections spoken of thus far have concerned only matters of fact: they are enlargements and rectifications of the evidence for the construction of a text. The text itself formed by Dr. Tregelles must, on the other hand, remain untouched, although he would certainly have made alterations in it had his years of strength been prolonged. There is no reason, as far as I am aware, to suppose that either his general principles or his views respecting particular authorities underwent any appreciable change. But the publication of new readings of his oldest and best MS. (B), and the accession of a new MS. equal in antiquity and second only in value (S), could not fail to disturb the balance of evidence in many places; and accordingly he intended at the close of the work to indicate the alterations which he would now wish to introduce into his printed text on a review of the augmented evidence. It is manifestly impossible for any one else to supply by conjecture a list of the readings which Dr. Tregelles might be presumed to have wished to correct: but it seemed worth while to distinguish by certain marks those readings, supported by fresh evidence, which were likely to have seemed to him at least worthy of serious consideration on a final revision.

Two large classes of readings are left unmarked; those which he had already adopted absolutely, and those which it seemed altogether unlikely that he would have in any way recognised.

Between these two extremes lie two other classes of readings, those which have been already recognised by Dr. Tregelles along with other alternatives as either probable or possible in doubtful cases, and those which, though hitherto discarded, might now have appeared to have at least some title to admission. The marking of readings of the former class is merely a statement of facts, and free from all uncertainty. Primary alternative readings, that is, those which stand in Dr. Tregelles's text proper, are marked †: secondary alternative readings, that is, those which stand in his margin, or which consist in the omission of words standing within brackets in his text proper, are marked ††. The marking of the second class of readings on the other hand, that is of those which have hitherto had no place in either Dr. Tregelles's text or his margin, but which he might have consistently taken up into either text or margin on reviewing the augmented evidence, is unavoidably conjectural: they are marked ‡. The choice has of course been regulated by the analogy of Dr. Tregelles's own practice in other parts of the New Testament; and it has seemed better to mark too many readings than too few. He would probably enough have eventually rejected a considerable proportion of the readings thus marked: but none, I trust, are marked which he would not have thought worthy at least of serious consideration. By far the greater number of the marks have been prefixed by Mr. Streane at his own discretion, but in accordance with suggestions offered for his guidance, and I am responsible for the decision in many doubtful cases which he wished to refer to me, and in some others, as also for the marks prefixed to readings not supported by fresh evidence from uncial MSS.

Taken altogether, the marks are intended to shew the points in which it cannot be safely affirmed that Dr. Tregelles would have finally retained his text, or text and margin combined, entirely unchanged. But from the nature of the case they cannot indicate, for it is not possible to divine, what amount of change, if any, he would have preferred to introduce. Where he prints alternative readings, the effect of the new evidence (marked † or ††) might have been either (1) none, or (2) the suppression of the secondary reading, or (3) the interchange of the primary and secondary readings, or (4) the suppression of the primary reading. And in like manner where he has no alternative readings, the effect of the new evidence (marked ‡) might have been either (1) none, or (2) the introduction of the new reading as secondary, or (3) its introduction as primary, the present reading becoming secondary, or (4) its introduction as primary, with suppression of the present reading.

It is hardly necessary to add that here as elsewhere, for instance in the selection of extracts for the Prolegomena, I have been careful not to allow any critical views of my own to exercise influence over the handling of the materials before me. It was a clear duty to aim at making this concluding Part as exclusively representative of Dr. Tregelles's own purposes and views as its predecessors, whether I agreed with them in all respects or not. On the other hand the task would have been embarrassing, and perhaps unbecoming, had we differed fundamentally about the comparative merits of the various authorities for the text of the New Testament.

It was Dr. Tregelles's lot, at various stages in the prosecution of his undertaking, to suffer misrepresentation from different quarters with respect to his aims, his principles of criticism, and his personal labours upon MSS. Neither justice however to his memory nor the claims of sound criticism required the perpetuation of controversy in this place: so that I have thought it right in reprinting the selections from his other writings to omit all strictly polemical matter, and on my own part to refrain from any attempt at vindication. His services to the exact knowledge of the New Testament are already better and more widely understood than they were a few years ago, and cannot fail as time goes on to obtain all due recognition. The moral qualities of his work as an editor, singleness of eye, unflagging care, and the persistence of faithful toil which never relaxed under discouragement, bodily weakness, or any other burden, may be left with equal confidence to sympathetic discernment.

“He who rightly studies the principles and facts of the Textual Criticism of the New Testament will find that he has acquired information not on one subject merely, but also on almost all of those that relate to the transmission of Scripture from the days of the Apostles; he will have obtained that kind of instruction which will impart both a breadth and a definiteness to all his Biblical studies; he will be led into a kind of unconscious connection with the writers of Scripture and their works.”

“Biblical study is a field in which the labour bestowed is amply rewarded: and as discussions are continually arising which can only be met satisfactorily by a competent acquaintance with Textual Criticism, it behoves those who really love and value Holy Scripture as the record of God, that they be not mere perfunctory students in this department. This country was once the field in which such studies pre-eminently flourished:—the names of Usher, Walton, Mill, and Bentley hold an honoured place in the history of the Biblical labours of that century in which Textual Criticism found here its cherished home. If we value the labours of those who have preceded us, and honour their memory, it should be an incentive to us to attend ourselves to this same department of Biblical knowledge. — χαίρετ' ἀκουοντες, ὅταν τις ἐπαινῇ τοὺς προγόνους ὑμῶν καὶ τὰ πεπραγμένα ἐκείνοις διεξίη καὶ τὰ τρόπαια λέγῃ· νομίζετε τοίνυν ταῦτ' ἀναθεῖναι τοῖς προγόνους ὑμῶν οὐχ ἵνα θαυμάζητ' αὐτὰ θεωροῦντες μόνον, ἀλλ' ἵνα καὶ μιμῆσθε τὰς τῶν ἀναθέντων ἀρετάς. (Demosth. ὑπὲρ τῆς Ῥοδίων ἐλευθερίας, sub fin.)”*

ADDENDA AND CORRIGENDA TO INTRODUCTORY NOTICES.

PART I.

MATTHEW AND MARK.

(Dr. Tregelles's list of authorities in Part I. includes the materials for the text of all the Gospels, as far as then known to him. It seems best therefore in like manner to place here the Addenda for the third and fourth Gospels, and to treat the list in Part II. as supplementary.)

p. iv.

A, line 2. A few corrections of Woide's text have been obtained from Mr. B. W. Cowper's edition of 1860.

B. See Introd. Not. to Parts II., III., IV.

After B. On N see Introd. Not. to Parts II., III., IV.

C, line 3: read 1843, and add "with corrections in his edition of the O. T. fragments of C, published in 1845."

D. See Introd. Not. to Part III.

II., line 5: after "Sacra" add "Nova Collectio, vol. I."

N. Thirty-three leaves of St. Mark's Gospel have subsequently been discovered in the library of the convent of St. John in Patmos by the librarian Sakkelion, apparently containing vi. 53—vii. 4; vii. 21—viii. 32; ix. 1—x. 43; xi. 7—xii. 19; xiv. 25—xv. 22. A transcript furnished by him has been used by Tischendorf in his editio octava; who has also had access to a few verses preserved in the collections of the Russian Bishop Porfiri.

After N see Fragm. Nitr. in Part II. These fragments (B. M. Add. 17,136), called N<sup>b</sup> in Tischendorf's editio septima and I<sup>b</sup> in his ed. octava, were printed by him in the Monumenta Sacra, N. C. II., 1857. They contain a few verses of John xiii and xvi.

P. Edited more completely by Tischendorf in his Monumenta Sacra, N. C. VI., 1869. There are ten leaves of St. Matthew, six of St. Mark, twenty-five of St. Luke, and three of St. John.

Q. See Introd. Not. to Part II. There are eleven leaves of St. Luke, two of St. John. The date of Tischendorf's publication is 1860.

R. Published in the Monumenta Sacra, N. C. II. See further Introd. Note to Part II.

T (and T<sup>w</sup>). See Introd. Not. to Part II. The results of a fresh collation of the fragments containing Luke xxii. 20—xxiii. 20 by Tischendorf are given in his editio octava.

Three sets of fragments closely resembling T have now been discovered and used by Tischendorf. They are T<sup>b</sup> at St. Petersburg, not earlier than the sixth century (parts of John i.—iv.); T<sup>c</sup> in Porfiri's collection, of the same date (parts of Matt. xiv., xv.); and T<sup>d</sup>, the remains of a Græco-Thebaic Lectionary among the Borgian MSS. at Rome, of about the seventh century (Matt. xvi. 13—20; Mark i. 3—8; xii. 35—37; John xix. 23—27; xx. 30*f.*). They should evidently be associated with T, though somewhat later in date.

After Z may now be added some fragments belonging to Porfiri, called by Tischendorf Θ<sup>c</sup> (Matt. xxvi. 2*ff.*), Θ<sup>f</sup> (portions of Matt. xxvi., xxvii.; Mark i., ii.), and Θ<sup>g</sup> (John vi. 13 ff.); with others partly in the St. Petersburg library, partly belonging to Porfiri, called Θ<sup>e</sup> (Matt. xxi. 19—24; John xviii. 29—35): all these are said to be of the sixth century. To the same or the following century are assigned other fragments at St. Petersburg, called Θ<sup>b</sup> (parts of Matt. xxii., xxiii.; Mark iv., v.).

L, line 3: add "in his first Monumenta Sacra."

Θ, line 3, after "Tischendorf" add "in his first Monumenta Sacra, 1846." Two fragments containing ten more lines were added in his Mon. Sac. N. C. II., 1857 (Tregelles, Add. to Horne, 770). All the fragments belong to Matt. xii.—xv. Θ is now called Θ<sup>a</sup> by Tischendorf.

For Ξ see Introd. Note to Part II. Subsequently published by Dr. Tregelles in 1861.

In Part II. Dr. Tregelles silently raises to the class of "later uncial MSS. of special importance" the two following:—

Frag. Mosq. Dr. Tregelles reprinted from Matthæi these fragments of John i. and xx. as an appendix to the Codex Zacynthius. They have since been recollated by Tischendorf, in whose chief editions they stand as O.

Y. This MS. contains John xvi. 3—xix. 41.

To this class (b.) may now be added fragments of Mark vii.—ix. in the library of Trinity College, Cambridge called W<sup>a</sup> by Tischendorf, and believed by him to be of the ninth century.

P. v.

69. See Introd. Not. to Part II., where in line 3 read "Angliensis."

8. Re-examined by Tischendorf, who gives the results in his ed. octava (see vol. i. pp. xli. xviii f.).

The two following MSS., omitted by "a mere oversight" (letter of April 12, 1854) in the Introd. Not. to Part I., are briefly noticed in Part II.

P. A MS. of the Gospels now almost complete, dated 844, if the indication is rightly computed. In 1853 Tischendorf brought to Europe 158 leaves, which are in the Bodleian library at Oxford. Six years later the St. Petersburg library gained possession of 39 other leaves by the same instrumentality. "The text of this MS. agrees in general with that of the other later uncials; in some peculiar passages it has such readings as are found in the more important MSS." (Fregoles, Horne, 203). The portion first discovered was collated by Dr. Fregoles when it was in England; the rest is known only from Tischendorf's ed. octava.

A. Of the ninth century, according to Tischendorf's later view. As an uncial MS., it contains St. Luke's and St. John's Gospels. This part is in the Bodleian library, having been obtained from Tischendorf with T after his journey of 1853. A cursive copy of the first two Gospels, acquired from him by the St. Petersburg library in 1859, was evidently the first part of the same MS. (Tischendorf, Notitia Codicum Sinaitici, 53 f.). Some marginal scholia to St. Matthew are remarkable as containing citations from the Gospel according to the Hebrews (τὸ Ἑβραϊκόν). The uncial portion was collated by Tischendorf, and subsequently by Dr. Fregoles. "The variety of reading is considerable, so that, although Constantinopolitan in its general character, it contains by no means a settled text" (Fregoles, Horne, 204).

Another almost complete MS. of the Gospels, of the ninth century, was brought by Tischendorf from Smyrna to St. Petersburg in 1859. It is briefly described in his Notitia Cod. Sin., 51 f.; and it is cited throughout (as H) in his ed. octava.

W, line 3: after "Tischendorf" add "in his flor. Monumenta Sacra, 1846." He now designates these short fragments of Luke ix. and x. as W<sup>a</sup>.

P<sup>a</sup> consists of single texts of the N. T. written in the margin of the Coptician LXX. Octateuch.

Pragm. Neap. Palimpsest leaves of the eighth or ninth century at Naples (W<sup>a</sup> of Tischendorf), containing parts of Matthew xix.—xxi., xxvi.; Mark xiii. 31—xiv. 67 (xiv. 32—39, read by Tischendorf in 1843, are cited by Dr. Fregoles); Luke iv. 1 (apparently) 20. The whole was eventually read by Tischendorf in 1866, and used in his ed. octava. He appears in 1865 and 1869 to have abandoned a suspicion strongly entertained in 1859 that W and Pragm. Neap. were parts of the same MS.

The Prag. Sinait. has been ascertained by Tischendorf to belong to a Lectionary. On less decisive evidence he assigns a similar origin to the Pragm. Bander., which at all events is of no interest except as having been included in Walsstein's list of uncials under the designation O.

The following uncial fragments may now be added. Three leaves at St. Gallen, written in the West in the ninth century (Mark ii. 8—16; Luke i. 20—32; 64—79), printed by Tischendorf as W<sup>a</sup> in the Monumenta Sacra, N. O. iii., 1860. Portions of John iv. 9—14, discovered by Mr. Kitchen in Christ Church library, Oxford, and copied by Tischendorf, who compares them (W<sup>a</sup>) to Pragm. Mosq. A few lines of Luke xi. at St. Petersburg, of about the eighth century, O<sup>a</sup> of Tischendorf. Three Greco-Arabic leaves of Matt. xiv. and xxv., belonging to Porfir, of the ninth or tenth century, O<sup>b</sup> of Tischendorf.

ANCIENT VERSIONS. Latin. Vulg. The Codex Fuldenis has been published in full by E. Ranke, Marburg, 1868.

The Old Latin. a.: read "by Iraci separately (Milan, 1748) and also by Blanchini [so the name should be read here and elsewhere] in his Evangelium Quadruplex (Rome, 1740)."

c.: read "Sabatier in his Bibliotheca Sacrorum Latine Vindones Antiquae, vol. iii. (Paris, 1751)."

e.: read "Tischendorf (Leipzig, 1847)."

ff.: is at St. Petersburg, ff.<sup>a</sup> at Paris (lat. 17,225).

gg.: is at Paris (lat. 86).

h.: read "Mai (S. V. N. O. iii. 257 ff.)."

L has been published in full by H. F. Haase (Breslau, 1865, 6).

Portions of several other Old Latin MSS. of the Gospels have been found of late years; and four or five of them have been used in Tischendorf's ed. octava.

Syrice. Syr. Ort. See Introd. Not. to Part II. Line 6, read "x. 32"; line 8, read "iii. 5 to vii. 37; xiv. 10—20 (with gaps)"; line 9, read "xviii. 23." Three more leaves have been discovered at Berlin, and published by Reediger in the Monatsbericht of the Berlin Academy for July, 1872, and also privately printed by Prof. Wright uniformly with Cureton's edition. They contain Luke xv. 22—xvi. 12; xvii. 1—23; John vii. 37—xiii. 19. Mr. Boudry has kindly noted the chief variations.

p. vi.

Syr. Hier. Published from the Vatican MS. by Count Miniscalchi Erisio (Verona, 1861—4). Parts of two other MSS. have been found in the British Museum, and of two more at St. Petersburg. The original texts and many readings from them have been given by Land in his Anecdota Syriaca (iv. 181 ff., Syr. 114 ff.; cf. i. 43 ff.). They are cited as Syr. Hier. Lond. (the single surviving leaf of the older MS. contains only Matt. xxvi. 48—64, perhaps from a continuous text of the Gospels); Syr. Hier. Petrop. ant[iquior]; Syr. Hier. Petrop. jun[ior].

ACTS AND CATHOLIC EPISTLES.

p. iii.

D, line 3 : read "Mr. Scrivener (Cambridge, 1864)."

E. Published by Tischendorf in his Monumenta Sacra, N. C. IX, 1870.

P. See Introd. Not. to Part IV. The Epistles were published by Tischendorf in his Monumenta Sacra, N. C., vol. V., 1865, the Apocalypse and Acts in vol. VI., 1869.

A fragment containing Acts ii. 44—iii. 8, of the seventh century, brought by Tischendorf to St. Petersburg in 1859, called G in his ed. octava, is here cited as G<sup>a</sup>.

Other fragments containing parts of Acts xvi.—xviii., apparently of the eighth or ninth century, have just been published by Cozza (Sacr. Bibl. Vetust. Fragm. III. : Rome, 1877), and are here cited as G<sup>b</sup>. They belonged to the library of the Greek convent of Grotta Ferrata (Bb. 26), now transferred to the Vatican (1670).

After 61 should be inserted 137, as Dr. Tregelles occasionally cites it in the latter chapters of Acts, where D fails. It is a Milan MS. (Ambr. E. 97 sup.) of the eleventh century, having much in common with D and similar authorities.

ANCIENT VERSIONS. Latin. s. is a Bobio palimpsest of about the fifth century, now at Vienna, deciphered by Tischendorf, and published by him with k. of the Gospels. ff. is ff<sup>1</sup>. of the Gospels. Other Old Latin fragments of the Acts and Catholic Epistles have been found or recognised of late years.

After "Syr.Hcl." etc. may be inserted Syr.Hier. ; for a leaf containing Acts xiv. 6—13 is among the St. Petersburg fragments (Land, Anecdota Syriaca iv. 206 f.).

PART IV.

ROMANS TO 2 THESSALONIANS.

p. i.

H. The Fragm. Mosq. of Hebrews x. 1—7, 32—38 (see Matthæi ad l.) are now (ed. octava) referred to this MS. by Tischendorf, who has detected four more leaves (parts of 2 Cor. iv. ; Col. iii. ; 1 Thess. ii., iv.) in the collections of Porfiri and the Archimandrite Antonius.

Other fragments assigned to the sixth century are O<sup>a</sup>,

O of Tischendorf (see Not. Cod. Sin. 20), at St. Petersburg (2 Cor. i. 20—ii. 12), and O<sup>b</sup> (so ed. oct. vol. ii., but evidently identical with R of vol. i. p. v.), a leaf at Moscow containing Eph. iv. 1—18. O<sup>c</sup> (R of Tischendorf's notes) is an obscure Grotta Ferrata fragment of 2 Cor. xi. (Cozza, S. B. V. F. II). Papyrus fragments of 1 Cor. i., vi., vii. in Porfiri's collection, Q of Tischendorf, are believed by him to be of the fifth century.

p. ii.

After F<sup>a</sup> may be added O<sup>d</sup> (N of Tischendorf), two St. Petersburg leaves of the ninth century, containing Gal. v. 12—vi. 4 ; Heb. v. 8—vi. 10.

ANCIENT VERSIONS. Old Latin fragments of St. Paul's Epistles have been found of late years.

Syr.Hcl. Mr. Bensly kindly adds the readings of Heb. xi. 28—end from the unique Cambridge MS.

Ar. B. : read "An Arabic version of Colossians transcribed ('ex antiquissimo exemplari') and translated by Bedwell (Cambridge University Library, Dd. 15. 4)."

p. iii.

Lines 1 and 5, for L read Q (Treg.).

PART VI.

REVELATION.

p. i.

Column 1, lines 1—3, dele all except "MSS."

In a letter of Sept. 29, 1870, Dr. Tregelles writes, "The MSS. used [in the Apocalypse] are those about which I was sure of the text ; some of them not of any particular value." He adds a list, in which P and Q stand between 38 and 91. The words "which I collated" are affixed to 1, and then "do. do." to 6, 7, and 14.

6, line 2 : for "xxi." read "xx. 1." This is the MS. transcribed by Cramer for the sake of the Commentary (Oxford, 1840).

7. Collated also by Dr. Scrivener, who calls it L.

14 : for "In the Apocalypse" etc. read "The last uninjured leaf ends at xviii. 7 ; the remains of another survive, ending at xix. 10 ; and another, ending at xx. 15, was extant in the time of Wetstein (see Tregelles, Horne, 210 ; Scrivener, Cod. Aug. xli.), from whose edition of the N. T. the readings not now extant are taken." See also on 92.

38. Of about the thirteenth century (Tregelles, Horne, 211).

91, line 3 : read "Vercellone."

92. Codex Montfortianus in the library of Trinity College, Dublin. "The MS. was written by different hands." "The Revelation agrees, as Dr. Barrett showed, in such a manner with the Codex Leicesterensis [14] of that book, as to prove that it was transcribed from that MS. ; and as both codices were once in the possession of the same William Chark, it is probable in the highest degree that the Revelation was copied to complete this MS., which must have seemed so far deficient in his time, i.e. in the latter half of the sixteenth century. This is confirmed by the corrections, etc., in the margin of the Codex Montfortianus having been made from the Leicestrensis by the same hand." "As the Codex Leicestrensis is defective at the end, this transcript from it . . . has been the means of preserving the readings of that part which is now defective" (Tregelles, Horne, 213, 216). Dr. Tregelles has therefore given the readings of 92 (doubtless following Barrett's collation appended to his edition of Z) from xviii. 7, where 14 begins to be defective. The transcription of 92 from 14, formerly questioned by Dr. Scrivener (Cod. Aug. xlii. f., 1859), is now held by him to be "very maintainable, though not quite certain" (Plain Introd. ed. 2. 246 [cf. 174]: 1874).

95 is g of Dr. Scrivener.

Two leaves of an Old Latin Apocalypse have lately been recognised.

Syr. Read "This version was supposed by Assemani to have been made in the sixth century: others suppose it to have been part of the Harclean recension of the Philoxenian version. 'It is possibly not really an ancient work; though of course its age is wholly uncertain; and its internal character and the nature of its text, as well as the want of all external credentials, place it indefinitely low as to critical value' (Tregelles, Horne, 281 f.)."

After "Syr." etc. insert "Theb. Cited here from two sources (Tregelles in letters of Dec. 20 and 30, 1869); the quotations in Tuki's Rudimenta Linguae Coptae (Rome, 1778); and two fragments (xix. 7—18; xx. 7—xxi. 3) printed by Zoega in his Catalogue of the Borgian collection (Rome, 1810), and kindly translated by the Rev. J. Glover, Vicar of Brading."

After "Æth." etc. insert "Hipp. The readings of an Old Bulgarian version of Hippolytus de Antichristo, discovered and published at Moscow, have been made accessible by Harnack in the Zeitschrift f. d. hist. Theologie for 1875, pp. 38—61, and often serve to correct the printed Greek text. The variations in the long quotations from the Apocalypse are cited in the Addenda as Hipp. Bulg.

Prms., i.e. Primasius, Bishop of Hadrumetum in N. Africa, who about 550 wrote a commentary on the Apocalypse founded on an early Old Latin text. Probably cited here from the extracts made by Sabatier from the Bibliotheca Maxima Patrum, vol. x. The readings of two portions omitted in this text (viii. 13—ix. 10; xiv. 4—7) are supplied in the Addenda from Winter's edition, Basel, 1544."

ADDENDA AND CORRIGENDA TO TEXT AND NOTES.

IN the Gospels, by far the greater part of the readings now given belong to the Sinai MS. (Σ). For the sake of brevity, the symbol Σ is omitted after the numerous readings which stand in the Sinai MS. where there is no correction, and for which no other authority is here cited (e.g. Matt. iii. 16, εὐθ. ἀνεβ.). On the other hand the symbol ■ is retained (1) where the original writing has been corrected by one or more other hands (e.g. Matt. iii. 15, ἡμῶν and ἡμᾶς), (2) where the Sinai MS. agrees with another authority here cited (e.g. Matt. ii. 22, om. ἐντ, or 23 Ναζαρετ), and (3) where it is opposed to another authority here cited (e.g. Matt. iii. 16, βαπτ. δε). Where the Sinai MS. is not cited (with or without the symbol Σ), it agrees with Dr. Tregelles's text, except where the difference is either merely orthographical (a few select variations of this kind being however noted) or due without doubt to an unmeaning and purely clerical error. But in all cases of considerable division of authorities the Sinaitic reading is given, even when it repeats Dr. Tregelles's text (e.g. Matt. i. 6, om. ὁ βαρ.). As an additional security, Mr. Streane has verified his own work by Dr. Scrivener's published collation of the Codex Sinaiticus (ed. 2, 1867). Many readings found in the Sinai MS. are new altogether to Dr. Tregelles's notes, some of them being previously unknown, and others having been excluded as lacking Greek uncial authority when he edited the Gospels. In the case of some readings of the latter class the evidence of versions and patristic quotations has been inserted, partly from Tischendorf's apparatus, partly from my own notes.

With respect to the Vatican MS. (B) the task of revision fell under three heads; (1) removal of the uncertainties arising from discordant statements of different collators or editors, and from the fact that in the first two Gospels many readings (marked s.) rested on no express testimony, but were inferred from the silence of collators; (2) insertion of readings known only from the latest editions, including some corrections of errors; and (3) rectification of statements respecting the different hands of the MS. Mr. Streane has taken as his primary guide the edition of Vercellone and Cozza in 'facsimile' type published at Rome in 1868, using along with it Tischendorf's edition of 1867, including the Appendix of 1869. Where Dr. Tregelles gives but one statement respecting B, or where one only out of two or more stands without brackets, that one is to be taken as ratified if the Addenda are silent. Where two or more stand without brackets, the true reading is here expressly recorded, as it is also in other cases where for one reason or another there appeared to be room for uncertainty. For the difficult discrimination of 'hands' it has been necessary to trust almost wholly to Tischendorf, as the volume of the Roman edition intended to contain the notes unfortunately remains still unpublished. Both the pale original writing of the MS. and the equally pale corrections of the ancient second hand have to be recovered from under the darker retracings and alterations of the third hand, which is probably not older than the tenth century. Many readings attributed by Mai and earlier collators to what they called the second hand, and accordingly marked B<sup>2</sup> in Dr. Tregelles's notes, are declared by Tischendorf to have been introduced by this very late hand, which on Dr. Tregelles's principles has no appreciable value: in such cases the original hand is for critical purposes the only hand. Wherever therefore Tischendorf pronounces a correction to be due to the true ancient second hand, the reading is given in the Addenda and marked B<sup>2</sup>; and wherever he expresses doubt either whether the third hand has introduced a fresh reading or merely followed the lines of the second hand, or whether an ancient correction is due to a second thought of the original hand or to the second hand, the doubt is recorded. On the other hand wherever a B<sup>2</sup> in Dr. Tregelles's notes is not expressly ratified, it should be cancelled, as readings due to the third hand lie practically outside Dr. Tregelles's limits. They are not cited in the Addenda except for some special reason.

In dealing with the other uncial Greek MSS. Mr. Streane has followed the same plan as in the case of N, except of course that the symbols are never omitted.

In 1 Corinthians, 1 and 2 Thessalonians, and Hebrews a few corrections have been taken from notes of a fresh examination of 17 (see above, p. xxiv.), kindly lent by Mr. VanSittart.

On the Addenda and Corrigenda for the evidence of Versions and Fathers enough has been said above. Nothing in the notation requires explanation here.

POSTSCRIPT.

THE following additional readings of T<sup>d</sup> and Θ<sup>b</sup> of the Gospels have been kindly furnished from Tischendorf's manuscript notes by Dr. C. R. Gregory, the editor of the forthcoming Prolegomena and Addenda to Tischendorf's editio octava: they were received too late for insertion in the proper place. The readings of O<sup>d</sup> in Heb. v. 8—vi. 10, given above, are also due to Dr. Gregory's courtesy.

T<sup>d</sup>.

Matt. xvi. 13—20.

xvi. 13. † τινα (om. με). || 14. ειπαν. || 17. αποκρ. δε. || 19. ελειδας. || 20. om. αυτου.

v. 14. απηγγειλαν. | ηλθον. || 15. και ιμ. | [λεγ]ωνα. || 16. και διηγ. || 18. † εμβαινοντος. | εις εν. || 19. και ουκ (vdtr). | αναγγειλον. | σοι ο κς (vdtr). | πεποιηκεν. || 21. παλιν ante εις το περαν. || 22. και ιδου ερ. || 23. και παρεκαλει.

The following are the readings of a tiny morsel of an uncial Lectionary brought from Upper Egypt, now in the Cambridge University Library (Add. 1876). It may be called T<sup>e</sup>. The writing must have been in two columns; and there is reason to suppose that the (lost) inner column was in Thebaic. The date seems to be about the sixth century. The mutilated title of the lesson to which the few extant words belong includes the name ΜΑΘΘΑΙΟΝ (sic).

Matt. iii. 13—16.
